IL DUCE CALLS FOR ANOTHER MOBILIZATION

Ghost Army Of 120,000 Is On Way

JERUSALEM, May 9—Unconfirmed reports reaching here today from Ethiopia indicated an army of 120,000 Ethiopians is marching on Addis Ababa, the capital, from the south. The army is reported led by Dagat Taye, nephew of the late Emperor Menelik. Advices here said Dagat Taye plans to seize the throne of Ethiopia for himself.

PARIS, May 9. — Wolde Mariam announced today, under instructions from the Ethiopian government's "new secret capital," that he would go to Geneva Monday with an appeal for "justice against Italy." The Ethiopian minister to Paris and delegate to the League of Nations declined to disclose where the government was set up since that would be "bad military tactics, laying it open to attack."

"It is true the government in some respects is disorganized, but it is nevertheless functioning. The Paris legation is receiving orders from a new capital where a large part of the cabinet and numerous functionaries are carrying on."

Mariam, as "official spokesman" for the government, declared Ethiopia's military resistance to the Italians would continue even though Fascist forces have occupied Addis Ababa and declared their war concluded successfully.

"We will not surrender as long as a single inch of land is in the hands of Ethiopians and whence they can attack the invaders," Mariam said.

"I shall tell the League the Ethiopian government is intact and functioning. It is in direct communication with what remains of the army, the legations throughout the world and all parts of Ethiopia not occupied by the Italians.

Gentlemen Still Prefer Blonde Gals

LONDON, Ont., May 9.—Ontario's bachelor doctors are gentlemen. They prefer blondes, intelligent, not too tall and not too petite, they revealed today in answers to a questionnaire sent out by the Ontario Medical Association program committee arranging for the fiftieth annual meeting here May 26-29.

Bennett

Former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will be guest of honor at a swank dinner dance May 27 and the committee helpfully offered to arrange for partners for the visiting doctors, and asked specifications. A survey of the answers showed the preference for blondes, but without the dark girls being neglected.

"The lady I want must be able to eat and talk, but without her mouth full," wrote a Hamilton physician.

"I want a dinner partner who can talk about music," specified a Windsor delegate-to-be.

Dr. C. C. Ross, general secretary, said the committee would do its best to meet all requirements.

BONDED DEBT REFUND PLAN SOON IS DUE

Premier Aberhart Says a Lower Rate of Interest Operative

CALGARY, May 9.—The Alberta government plan for the refunding of practically the whole of the provincial debt, amounting to $160,000,000, at a lower rate of interest will be in operation before the end of June unless there is unexpceted difficulties, Premier Aberhart stated here today.

He was, however, confident the scheme would go into effect within the next seven weeks. Details of the plan will be made known at a later date.

Disappointment over the reported decision of the federal government to reduce the outlay for road work in Alberta to $400,000 was expressed by Mr. Aberhart. He said it would seriously interfere with the plans of the government to put a large number of men to work.

The provincial government had expected to have between the two governments between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 to spend on raod work this year.

"Until W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, returns from Ottawa, I am not in a position to say just what is going to happen," said the Premier. Mr. Fallow is expected back in Edmonton Tuesday.

BLIND MAN PLAYS GOLF: HAS RECORD

British United Press

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 9.—David Hunter, 30, has been blind since he was six years old, but he enjoys a game of golf.

He plays twice or three times a week, and recently completed 18 holes in 100—thought to be a world's record for a blind man. His sense of distance is uncanny. He drives a ball well—his longest drive is 220 yards—and putts remarkably well.

"I was taught by a professional," he declares. "On the tee I can see the ball in my mind's eye. I touch it lightly with the club, then swing and drive. In putting, I judge distance by sound made on the metal cup."

AMY TO TRY ADDED RECORD

CAPE TOWN, May 9. — Amy Johnson Mollison, British flier, said today she had cabled her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, in London that she planned to take off tomorrow in an effort to set a new record from Cape Town to London.

Amy Mollison this week clipped some 11 hours off the London-Cape Town record set last February by Flight-Lieut. Tommy Rose and she will attempt likewise to lower Rose's record for the return flight.

High Role In War Is Her Vision

With other noted airwomen, Mrs. Cecil (Teddy) Kenyon, above, of Boston, may play a lofty role in the next war, if and when it comes. According to her, groups of women flyers are forming clubs, to train for such war-time service as piloting new planes wherever needed, carrying wounded soldiers and dispatches, and replacing male commercial pilots.

KILLER SNARES FORTUNES AS RELATIVES DIE

Los Angeles Snake-Bite Torturer Charged in Insurance Frauds

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—District Attorney Buron Fitts maintained today Robert S. James collected $18,000 on the deaths of his third wife and his nephew before plotting snakebites and drowning for his fifth mate in a move to get $21,400 more.

As the inquiry went deeper into the 38-year-old barber's insurance and matrimonial activities, investigators also announced James received a new policy on his fifth wife's life the day she died, last Aug. 5.

It was the day, Fitts contends, that Mrs. James was drowned in her own bath tub after failing to show effects of the venom of a box of striking rattlesnakes, her foot being forced into their midst.

James and Charles H. Hope, former sailor whose story resulted in murder indictments against both of them, will plead to the charges today. Prosecutors said each man accused the other of drowning the woman.

Fitts said James profited $5,000 from the automobile death of a nephew, Cornelius Wright, and $13,000, from the drowning of his third wife in the bath tub of a Manitou, Colo., tourist cottage where they were on a vacation nearly four years ago.

Militia Controls Salonika After Strikers Clash

ATHENS, Greece, May 9—Military authorities assumed control today of the city of Salonika after 10 persons were killed in a clash between troops and striking tobacco workers.

An armored car was forced to shoot its way out of a mob of employees. Fifty persons were injured last night when mounted police charged a crowd of 6,000 demonstrating workers.

LOTTERY URGED TO PAY OFF DEBT

SUDBURY, Ont., May 9.—National lotteries, a return to rural life, replacement of women in industry by men and nationalization of relief were put forward here last night by Mayor Camilien Houde of Montreal as cures for present-day ills.

"We have a population of 10,000,000 persons," he said. "We don't want immigration and yet we have a public debt of ten billions which is $1,000 per person. We cannot pay 100 cents on the dollar with ten million people."

GROCERS RAP OPERATION OF SALES LEVIES

Meeting Protests "Unfair" Provisions of New Provincial Legislation

A storm of protest over the new sales tax and particularly the licensing clause was raised by retail grocers who met in the Liberal Club rooms Friday night.

The meeting, originally called for the purpose of having government officials explain the sales tax, turned into a protest meeting after the officials left. Some 50 retail grocers attended.

BASE ON SALES

A resolution asking the government to base the license fees on volume of sales as well as variety of goods sold, was finally passed after heated discussion. The merchants claimed that it was unfair for a grocer who handles small quantities of other lines to have to pay $9 to $12 tax when a general merchant in a rural district or small town doing more business pays $5.

The act calls for license fees for each line of goods sold if there is, in the same town or city, a person specializing in that line.

STATIONERS PAY TAX

A grocer selling stationery in Edmonton must pay a tax because stationery stores are in business. A general merchant in Spruce Grove does not pay that tax because there is no stationery store in that town. This is unfair, merchants claim.

Exemption from the sales tax for all kinds of soap and soap powders sold for personal use was also requested or, failing that, a 25 cent purchase price exemption.

Woman, 106, Is Anxious To See Shorts Banned

British United Press

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 9.—Mrs. Sarah Musgrave, 106, Australia's oldest woman, has only one ambition left.

"I trust I shall live to see all this tomfoolery in modern girls' dress ended," she declares. "I am incensed at many of the present-day forms of women's clothing, especially those disgusting 'shorts' and tight-fitting bathing costumes. It is all immodest and shameful. Clergymen should speak more from the pulpit on this offensive state of affairs and endeavour to bring about reforms.

"Young women should adopt a nice, half-length dress for field games and women bathers should wear looser garments in the water. It is disgusting for them to apear in public half-naked."

Named Marshal

ROME, May 9.—Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, commander of Italy's southern forces in the Ethiopian campaign, was appointed a marshal of Italy by King Victor Emmanuel today.

By ANDRUE BERDING

Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press

ROME, May 9. — Premier Mussolini summoned Italy today to another great "adunata," or semi-military mobilization, to hear him proclaim what would be done with conquered Ethiopia.

Il Duce's significant pronouncement will be made in a broadcast, starting at 10:00 p.m. (3:00 a.m., C.S.T.,) tonight, when the Fascist grand council and the council of ministers will meet in quick succession at the Palazzo Venezia.

The two sessions will bring formal annexation of Ethiopia by Italy and a new definition of the Italian kingdom as an "empire," well-informed sources said.

To add to the reasons for celebration was the official announcement Italian troops had entered Harar. And a detachment started out to make contact with the Italian forces at Diredawa on the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad.

The government-controlled press prepared the populace for these announcements. Students cheered King Victor Emmanual as emperor. Fascist headquarters termed Mussolini "Founder of the Empire."

Informed sources said today's formalities were considered necessary to counter-act future European developments. They said Italy intended to hold what it had taken and wait to see what happened at Monday's session of the League of Nations Council.

1—There is practically no ice in Iceland, even in winter;

HAILE PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

JERUSALEM, May 9.—Haile Selassie, fugitive Emperor of Ethiopia, asked today in his first public statement in exile, that justice be done his country.

"We ask that justice be done to protect a weak nation against a stronger."

GIANT AIRSHIP BREAKS MARK ACROSS OCEAN

By GREGORY HEWLETT

Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 9—The Hindenburg, newest and largest of the Zeppelins, completed its first trip across the North Atlantic today in record time for lighter-than-air craft. The giant ship moored at the naval air base here at 6.23 a.m. (E.D.T.)—61 hours and 53 minutes after it left its home port of Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Following the shipping lane across the North Atlantic, the Hindenburg did not pass over North American land until it skirted Long Island, followed Ambrose channel into New York harbor and cruised over New York City.

At 6:10 a.m., the Hindenburg for the first time touched soil in the United States—on the first of its 10 scheduled round trip commercial voyages from Germany during the summer.

A landing crew of trained sailors from the United States navy, aided by about 50 civilians, brought the ship safely to land. Civilians were pressed into service because soldier reinforcements from Camp Dix were not on hand when the ship arrived.

CIRCLE OVER STATION

The Hindenburg circled over the air station before it lowered to the earth, dumped its water ballast, and threw out its ropes. Its speed was so greatly reduced that as it slowly

Bawling Babes Know No Law Aldermen Find

British United Press

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 9—Screaming babies know no law. Statutes may muzzle howling dogs, rumbling machinery, crooners, radio loud-speakers, and other disturbers of the public's peace, but they bow in defeat before a baby's cry.

This blunt fact exercised the minds of Ashfield aldermen recently. A resident of the suburb complained that a nuisance was caused him by a nursing home in his neighborhood. For seven days a week, he said, babies were placed in perambulators and left there, where they screamed for hours. He asked the council to do something to stop the screams.

The mayor explained that it was a difficult matter. The council could act in the matter of mechanical noises, he said, but was powerless to stop babies from crying.

Two Ministers Will Not Share In Rescue Fund

HALIFAX, May 9—Mines minister Michael Dwyer and health minister Dr. F. R. Davis will not share in the Moose River rescue fund for those who assisted in the deliverance of Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding from the Moose River mine. "When the fund was first started by the Red Cross both Dr. Davis and I made it quite clear that our names should not appear," Mr. Dwyer stated Friday.

TACOMA, May 9.—William Mahan pleaded guilty today to both kidnapping counts brought for the $200,000 abduction last summer of George Weyerhaeuser, nine-year-old lumber family scion.

French Fear Financial Disaster Over Heaviest Gold Shipment Abroad

By RICHARD MASSOCK

Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, May 9. — Warring French political leaders joined forces last night to calm fears of possible financial disaster. Heavy gold shipments abroad and a wildly fluctuating stock market reflected public fears that political struggles might destroy confidence and bring devaluation of the franc.

Relieved over the regular week-end holiday which would prevent further fluctuation in the franc's value the cabinet planned a session with President Lebrun for today.

Transactions on the stock exchange sent prices rising and falling indiscriminately on what operators described as a "disorderly" market in the face of increases in foreign exchange premiums.

"Future purchases in foreign exchange are tending to become practically impossible," financial circles declared, after the premiums were boosted to 1.25 francs for three months on dollar operations and 6.75 francs on sterling operations.

This made them equivalent approximately to 33 and 35 per cent on an annual basis.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, moved to the support of Premier Sarraut, asserting the cabinet's premature resignation "would have whipped up a money and stock market panic."

"It remains to be seen," he added, "if the government's efforts (to maintain the value of the franc) will be effective."

Sarraut, cautioning against apprehension over Socialist measures which he described as "still only theoretical", was quoted as saying Frenchmen "hold their fate in their own hands."

He Earns Title Of Conqueror

Dominating the picture in Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, all but complete as Mussolini's invading legions entered Addis Ababa, is the figure of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, often mentioned as Italy's next dictator if Il Duce should come to an untimely end. The conqueror's honors go to Badoglio, head of the general staff, wearer of highest World War laurels, shown here conferring with an adjutant, when the subjugation of Emperor Haile Selassie's armies was complete.

Marshal Badoglio To Become First Viceroy For Italo-Ethiopians

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Foreign Staff

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN ADDIS ABABA, May 9.—Marshal Pietro Badoglio was understood today to have been selected for the post of viceroy of Ethiopia—first viceroy in Italian history. A proclamation of his appointment was expected to be issued soon in Rome.

The Marshal could turn to the task of governing Ethiopia in the name of King Victor Emmanuel since the military campaign, in which he was commander-in-chief, has virtually ceased to exist.

Italian troops, after occupying the former imperial capital last Tuesday and restoring order to the pillaged town, are penetrating peacefully the country around tomb-like Addis Ababa in widening circles, eliminating native banditry.

There are now 30,000 Italian troops here.

TROOPS SENT TO PALESTINE

CAIRO, Egypt, May 9.—Authoritative sources said last night two companies of infantry totalling 300 men were sent to Palestine as reinforcements for troops at Jerusalem and other cities.

The soldiers left in Royal Air Force planes. They are to be added to existing British police forces in the Holy Land to guard against further outbreaks between Jews and Arabs.

The normal Palestine garrison of British trops consists of 1,970 men of all ranks, including two battalions of infantry totalling 1,766 men.

20 TO 1 SHOT WINS HANDICAP

KEMPTON PARK, England, May 9.—C. Winn's Inflation, a 20 to 1 shot, today won the Great Jubilee handicap at Kempton Park.

A neck behind in second place was G. F. Annesley's His Reverence, quoted at 9 to 2. Lord Portal's The Blue Boy finished third 1½ lengths back of His Reverence, and quoted at 20 to 1, the same odds as Inflation.

Killing Baffles Scotland Yard

LONDON, May 9.—Scotland Yard puzzled today over its third unsolved murder mystery in the last six months with the discovery of the battered body of a pretty brunette in the Soho district.

Constance May Hind, 24, apparently was clubbed to death with a hammer or poker, police decided after a preliminary investigation.

U.S. MOTTLED IN HEAT, RAIN AND BLIZZARD

Five Hurt as Tornado Sweeps Oklahoma Towns —Wires Down

HORATIO, Ark., May 9.—A tornado struck the Dilworth and Lone Oak communities, five miles east of Horatio, today, killing two persons, seriously injuring another and destroying 15 farm homes.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Tornadoes, blizzards, heavy rains and abnormal heat mottled the United States today.

Tornadoes injured five persons and wrecked a score of buildings at Hanna, Okla., late yesterday and injured four residents of Gore, Okla., last night.

A small twister claimed one life at Bonham, Tex. Torrential rains washed out roads in the Hanna area. One hundred and fifty travellers, marooned for nearly 24 hours by a blizzard atop Raton pass last night were rescued or made their way to safety. Power lines in Trinidad and several communities in that vicinity were down.

ATTEMPTS TO ENGINEER MILL STRIKE SCORED

TIMBER INDUSTRY BREAKDOWN SEEN AS SERIOUS BLOW

British Columbia's Labor Minister Criticizes Faction of Lumber Workers.

VICTORIA, May 9 — Labor minister Pearson of British Columbia, pointing to the effect a breakdown in the timber industry would have upon the workers of the province, Friday criticized a faction of lumber workers attempting to engineer a strike among mill employees.

As Mr. Pearson was making an analytical review of the four-day-old strike, reports were received here that workers at the Merrill, Ring and Wilson lumber camp, Rocky Bay, had voted 180 to 120 to join the strike for union recognition.

2,000 ALREADY IDLE

Previously reports from union officers and representatives of mill operators in Vancouver set the number of men already idle variously at 1,300 and 2,000.

"As I have made clear many times I believe in trade unions, but I do not believe in a union where 25 per cent of the men tell the others what to do," the minister said.

HOPE TO GAIN CHARTER

"The present struggle seems to be an effort on the part of what would appear to be a small percentage of the men in the industry who hope to obtain a charter from the American Federation of Labor, and they are using the strike method to force the operators to accept unionism," the minister said.

"So far as I know this is not an American Federation of Labor strike. It is between those who are organizing a union and those who are not yet ready to join the union. The men themselves will have to choose in this matter."

Empress Gives Another Snappy Kids Program

Combining their talents and organizing ability Fred Doucet and Queenie Jackson Bouvette provided another snappy vaudeville stage presentation for members of the Empress Children's Booster program on Saturday morning. Arranged by Mrs. Bouvette, Mr. Doucet assisted in his capacity as secretary of the club.

For the occasion new lighting effects were provided, while renovations were carried out to the stage.

Manager Alex Entwisle, Edmonton's pioneer theatrical impressario, who takes a deep personal interest in the children's club, was specially interested in the Saturday performance and gave the organizers much lee-way in carrying it out.

Others taking part in the program were Gloria Sturgeon, Jacqueline Ireland, Joan J. Walker, Russell McLung, Ken Peters, Kenneth Quinn, Lorice Kirk and Ralph Mumford.

CAR INDUSTRY CHIEFS REPLY TO PROTESTS

Claim They Have Not Increased Automobile Prices By Single Cent

By THOS. WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, May 9. — Western members of parliament who have been protesting against the fact that the public has to pay more for automobiles since presentation of the Dunning budget were answered Friday by representatives of the automotive industry who are here to confer with the tariff board with respect to details of the tariff changes.

The automobile men claim they have not increased the price of their automobiles by a single cent and a car is now costing more solely because of the increased taxation provided for in the budget.

INCREASE ACCOUNTED FOR

Increase in the sales tax from six to eight per cent and the levying of a new excise tax of five per cent on the wholesale value of a car in excess of $650 account entirely for the increased cost to the consumer, the automobile men pointed out. They claim that they are simply tax collecting agents for the Dominion government and any increased amount they take from the buying public is all turned over to the federal treasury.

Western members were expecting a decrease in the cost of automobiles, but it was explained at the time the budget was brought down no such drop in prices could be expected. On the contrary it was stated the cost of the car to the buyer would be increased through high taxation.

ONUS ON GOVERNMENT

The automobile manufacturers are concerned that in some quarters there is an inclination to blame the increased cost of automobile on them when so they say repsonsibility properly rests with the government.

The automobile men also evinced considerable anxiety when the budget was brought down, anticipating that the public might not understand the reason for the higher prices that have resulted from heavier taxation.

BENNETT FORESAW INCREASE

During debate on the budget earlier this week, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett foresaw that the jump in the sales tax and the new excise tax levy would mean higher priced automobiles. This situation is not peculiar to the automotive trade alone, but applies to all goods on which greater taxes are being levied.

The automobile representatives are asking the government to assist in making it clear in the minds of the public that they have not effected the slightest increase in the prices of their cars.

Wainwright Oil Strike Reported

Contrary to accepted oil drilling theories, the drillers at Monalta No. 1 well in the Wainwright field were enthused on Thursday when they came upon a flow of oil in limestone formation at their location three miles northwest of the town of Wainwright.

The strike was made at a depth of 3,402 feet and coring and baling is proceeding. While there is a possibility that the flow will reach 100 barrels a day, this will not be determined until casing, now at the 2,500 foot level is set and final tests are made. The product, which is of light green color, has been sampled and sent to the University of Alberta for analysis.

It is reported that the strike there has resulted in the filing of some 12,000 acres in the district.

APPEAL COURT SESSION HERE NEXT MONDAY

Chief Justice Harvey Announces "Weepers" Will Not Be Worn

Spring session of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of Alberta will open Monday morning with Chief Justice Horace Harvey presiding. Others on the bench will be Messrs. Justices McGillivray, Mitchell, Lunney and Clarke.

The chief justice, sitting in chambers Saturday morning to arrange for times at which cases on the appeal court docket will be heard, announced that in this session the white linen mourning bands, for His Late Majesty King George V, would not be worn. Up until the present time, the Lords Justices and King's Counsels have worn the linen cuffs, familiarly known as "weepers."

CROWN APPEALS

Following four cases which can quickly be disposed of Monday morning, as the appeals will be dropped, the appeal of the crown against the dismissal of Harry Graves Curlett, Westlock mayor, on an insurance fraud chrage, by Mr. Justice Ives, will be heard.

J. W. McClung, appearing in place of E. W. S. Gray, K.C., for the attorney-general's department, stated the crown was prepared to allow the conviction of Robert Weiss, for alleged theft of clothing from the relief commission, to be quashed, as they did not feel there was sufficient evidence to uphold it.

Appeal of Fred Mino, sentenced by Mr. Justice Tweedie to five years and six lashes, will be spoken to late in the week by W. G. K. Bloor, counsel for the appellant.

SEMIOND'S APPEAL

Appeal in the case of the King vs. Gow, from Elk Point, will be dismissed as appeal books have not been filed.

Appeal of Lucien Julien Semiond and Celine Semiond against an order by Mr. Justice Ford stating that they were bound by a lease entered into with Mary, Melville, Walter and Thomas Broughton, drawn up by Joseph Dechene, who is also joined in the action, will be spoken to Thursday.

The appeal court docket carries 15 cases, of which two were set over to the September sitting.

As soon as the ship was made fast to the movable mooring mast, immigration officers—just as if it were a big liner at quarantine in New York bay—went aboard and made the routine inspection.

A special post office crew was on hand to care for the largest mail load ever transported by air across the north Atlantic, 2,200 pounds, including much material of value for stamp collectors.

James McVittie of Chicago, flew from Friedrichshafen to Pernambuco in 1931. He crossed over on the "Bremen" more than a week ago, took a plane to Moscow to do some business there, then flew via Berlin to Friedrichshafen to catch the Hindenburg, and expects within 15 days of starting from Chicago to be back in his home town.

Prof. Franz Wagner, a pianist from Dresden, can claim the distinction of being the first musician to give a concert on board a dirigible. More than that, he is the first man to broadcast Chopin, Schubert and Strauss selections both to North America and Germany from an airship.

Dr. Hugo Eckener and Captain Ernst Lehmann kept everybody guessing as to when, if at all, they sleep. Early risers found the airship veterans up before them. Long after midnight they were up still. Neither missed a meal. So they could not have slept then.

Leslie Charteris, of London, British novelist and writer of mystery stories, confessed here today he made the trip, looking for a new idea for a mystery story and believes he found it.

"I was interested in discovering whether a Zeppelin could be kidnapped. I think it would be difficult, but it could be done. A ship like that going at slow speed could stay in the air four weeks."

Four Break-Ins Reported Here

Thieves entered the premises of the J. D. Adams Grader Co., 10609 105 avenue by breaking down the rear door sometime Friday night and escaped with two expensive tool kits, containing wrenches for graders and a grease gun. Manager H. Morrison, 10640 106 street, reported the break-in.

Snapping the lock on the door, thieves also broke into the garage of Gordon E. Smeltzer, 10237 125 street, sometime Friday night, and escaped with a number two iron golf club, one dozen golf balls, a pair of golf shoes and a black camel pile overcoat.

Mrs. Gilbert, 10912 80 avenue, reported that during her absence thieves broke into her home and stole $6.00 from a purse in the bedroom dresser drawer. Entrance was gained by use of a pass key.

While his wife was busy dusting the front room, thieves entered the back porch of Gordon Gould's home at 10954 88 avenue and ransacked the refrigerator. Mrs. Gould heard someone on the back porch and going out to investigate found the ice box door open and most of the contents taken.

A boat parked along the river bank on 111 street belonging to E. Sharin, 11115 98 avenue was stolen sometime Friday.

Three juveniles were picked up by a prowler car at 9:30 p.m. Friday when they could not give a satisfactory account of their possession of a big bundle of empty sacks. At police headquarters they confessed to stealing them from C. P. Wilson grain company on 105 avenue and 97 street. They were turned over to juvenile authorities.

DRIVE AGAINST DIPHTHERIA IN FINAL STAGES

Inoculations to be Administered Commencing Monday Morning

Dr. D. J. Dunn's prevention of diphtheria campaign will be carried into its third phase next week when inoculations will again be administered by the medical department of the public schools commencing Monday morning at 9 a.m.

As previously conducted, the city has been zoned into three areas to avoid congestion of treatments. The portion of the city lying north of the river consists of two sections, the west section which includes all children living west of 101 street, and the east section which includes all children living east of 101 street. The third section comprises all of the city south of the river.

EAST SECTION

All children residing in the east section are asked to report to room 508 of the Civic building on Monday for treatment.

Children living west of 101 street on the north side of the river are asked to report on Tuesday at room 508 of the Civic building for treatment.

Those living on the south side of the river will report at King Edward school on Wednesday for their inoculations.

THREE INOCULATIONS

Dr. Dunn has expressed his desire that parents should remember that is it necessary to inoculate all children three times in order to make the treatment successful. Parents are also requested not to bring children to the medical department's offices on Monday or Tuesday to consult about matters other than those about inoculations.

By observing the following time table, treatments can be assured with the least amount of confusion:

Schools east of 101st street: Monday, May 11: 9:00, Alex Taylor; 9:30, North Edmonton; 10:00, Parkdale; 10:30, Eastwood; 10:30, North Delton; 11:00, Donald Ross; 1:30, McCauley; 2:00, Norwood; 2:30, Highlands; 3:00, Riverdale; 3:30, Cromdale.

FRANCE WAITS HITLER REPLY

PARIS, May 9.—France's intention to ask Locarno powers and the League Council to postpone discussion of both Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland and Italy's conquest of Ethiopia was indicated last night in official circles.

The government wants to wait until Chancellor Hitler replies to a British questionnaire concerning his foreign policies and until Premier Mussolini completes the annexation of Ethiopia.

Father Sees Name of Son Advanced to Head Of Public Enemy List

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 9—A care-bent father saw the name of his boy advanced to the head of the United States list of "public enemies" today and sorrowfully expressed the belief the errant son probably would be better off dead.

"But I am still hopeful he is alive," quickly added grey haired Thomas H. Robinson, Sr., whose son has been hunted for more than a year and a half as the kidnapper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll of Louisville, Ky.

SUCCEEDS MAHAN

The 29-year-old fugitive succeeded to the dubious position of the most hunted criminal following the capture this week of William Mahan, Weyerhaeuser kidnap suspect, in the latest thrust of the United States government against criminals.

His 63-year-old father is one of three persons over whom the question "Is Robinson dead or alive?" hangs constantly. Another is the fugitive's wife, who has applied for a divorce.

"I don't know; I try not to think about it," she said when asked if she believes Robinson to be dead.

BELIEVE FATHER DEAD

The third person is the hunted man's six-year-old son, Jimmy. His mother said he was being brought up to believe his father is dead.

Robinson, Sr., and the young Mrs. Robinson aided in the delivery of the $50,000 ransom with which her socially prominent family bought the release of Mrs. Stoll, about a week after she was kidnapped in October, 1934.

Robinson and his daughter-in-law declared they acted at the express request of the Stolls. They were arrested and indicted on kidnapping charges. A year after the kidnapping they were tried at Louisville and won acquittals.

CITY QUESTIONS LOAN FIRMS ON HOME BUILDING

Seeking information as to why local loan and insurance companies were not loosening pursestrings to aid prospective home-builders under the Dominion Housing act, city commissioners conferred with representatives of financial houses late Friday. Civic officials declined to comment on the results of the parley, explaining that discussions in this connection would be continued.

The Act povides that the Dominion will contribute 20 per cent toward the construction of homes, and the prospective purchaser another 20 per cent. The remaining 80 per cent would be provided either by the municipality or loan companies, the purchaser paying off the debt on the instalment plan at a fair rate of interest.

F. S. Wright, manager of the Edmonton Tax Research Bureau is suggesting to city council that Edmonton float a baby bond issue carrying interest at 4 per cent to raise 60 per cent of the required amount for home-building. He estimates 500 homes valued at $3,000 each would be constructed here under a housing scheme.

Dividend Passed

VANCOUVER, May 9—Officials of Pioneer Gold Mines of B.C., Ltd., Friday announced a quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share, payable July 2 to shareholders of record May 30.

Scotland Yard Will Analyze Road Accidents

British United Press

LONDON, May 9.—The most searching analysis ever made of road accidents is to be carried out by Scotland Yard in co-operation with the ministry of transport.

The scheme will mean extra work for the police. Every policeman will have a special notebook for this new inquiry, in which he will set down key facts about every accident to which he is called.

Some of these facts will be the time, weather conditions, the make of the car involved, the width of the road, and the movements of vehicles and pedestrians.

It is hoped that new accident danger points may be revealed when the investigation is concluded.

Joe Brown Leaps On Way From Hospital Room

BALTIMORE, May 9. — Joe E. Brown, acrobatic movie comedian, checked out of Johns Hopkins hospital Friday, after a medical examination, via the balcony route and a 10-foot leap to the institution lawn. He cleared a porch railing and blew a cheering gallery of nurses a farewell kiss.

"I always go in and out of hospitals that way," he explained. "It saves time and trouble."

DENY RANSOM CASH PASSED IN CALGARY

R.C.M.P. Declare No Weyerhaeuser Kidnap Bills Found in Alberta

CALGARY, May 9.—Denial that bills from the $200,000 Weyerhaeuser kidnap ransom money had been passed in Calgary was made here last night by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Some United States federal bills had been found here, police stated, but a check by Washington authorities had proved them not from the payment made for the return of young George Weyerhaeuser, of Tacoma, Wash., a year ago.

G-MEN TO LEAVE

G.-men, members of the United States department of justice, who have been in Alberta for several weeks hunting for the scar-faced ex-convict William Mahan, alleged principal in the Weyerhaeuser case, prepared to leave Canada last night.

A United States agent who came to Calgary from Washington, when it was reported ransom bills had been passed here, has been called to San Francisco. Mahan, who has relatives in southern Alberta, was captured in the Pacific Coast city Thursday. Other G-men have been stationed in the Lethbridge and border districts.

ALBERTA ANGLE CLOSED

Royal Canadian Mounted Police have been co-operating with the United States agents. The G-men, it was said, consider the Alberta angle of the case closed.

LOAN QUESTION IS HELD OVER

OTTAWA, May 9.—After long sessions Friday on proposed model legislation to limit returns to small loan companies loaning money up to a maximum of $500, the senate banking and commerce committee postponed further consideration until next Wednesday.

The major part of the sittings was devoted to the question of the limit which should be placed in the bill but no decision was reached. G. D. Finlayson, dominion superintendent of insurance, suggested the limited return should be bulked at two per cent. per month or 24 per cent. annually covering interest, service and other charges.

MR. S. R. WALLACE, Barrister, who left Edmonton for Pacific Coast 11 years ago, wishes to announce that he has resumed practice at 204-205 Northern Investment Building, Edmonton.

COMPILER'S COMMENTS

You will notice that the word 'gwy' appears in the winning solution published for No. 3. This word is disqualified in all subsequent competitions, but was accepted for the first three puzzles in accordance with the rules as they then existed.

Some contestants write in asking if the low score prizes are to be tried for, or are they merely booby prizes. To this we reply that there is as much skill involved in securing a low score as a high score, and therefore the low score prizes are to be tried for as much as the high ones.

Winning solutions are on file in our office for those who wish and are able to see them.

Letter Values Will Be Changed Each Week

HOW TO WIN!

Solving cross-word puzzles is a fascinating pastime, but constructing them can be even more fascinating. In this VALU-WORDS competition you are invited to construct a simple cross-word puzzle instead of solving one. There are no clues to bother about and the diagram is already provided for you. All you need to do is to complete the cross-word, using any word which meets with the rules of this contest.

No word may be used twice in one puzzle. "Across" and "Down" words must interlock, so as to form a complete cross-word puzzle.

Each letter has been given a certain number of points, as shown in the above table of letter-values. When you have completed your puzzle add up the score made by the words across. Then add the score made by the words down. Letters in the squares marked by a small 'x' count one way only. The specimen shows you how to do this.

The highest total wins first prize, next highest second prize, and so on. Now it is up to you!

Fill in your words lightly in pencil until you have selected those which you have decided upon finally. Then use ink. In the event that you spoil the printed form, you may send in your own copy on plain paper.

FEAR 'HIDEOUS WAR' IF SANCTIONS CONTINUED

The drill when it came through to us did not come through the side wall of the shaft but through the ceiling of the shaft, so to speak. We heard it drilling but could not locate the sound. It came out, as you now know, not in the landing off which our cubby hole was situated, but underneath the landing stage.

When the first signal fuse came down throwing a weird pinkish red light, I supposed the mine was on fire; the friction of the cave-in had started timbers burning. At any rate I dashed for the opening in the wooden landing or platform and Dr. Robertson passed me cupfuls of water which I slashed down furiously at the unrecognized messenger of good tidings.

I put it out. It spluttered protestingly. I crawled back to our little cavern, though if I had waited a few minutes, I would have seen Billie Bell's little flashlight protrude its eye out of the drill hole. A little while later, compressed air began to hiss and roar out of the drill hole, but still we could not get it through our heads that there was a communication there. I supposed it was air the rescuers were forcing down the old steam pipes for some reason.

We heard pounding and air hissing all day and, after some hours, the whistle began to screech down below the platform. Finally we realized the whistle was a signal, not a part of the process of rescuing us.

FELT WAY DOWN SHAFT

I explored out on to the wooden landing with the last dim fading rays of my flashlight and peered down the ladder hole of the shaft. You understand that the wooden platform completely floored off the shaft, with three holes or open traps in the planks, the one on the right, looking downshaft, being for the skip and its rails; the middle one was for the ladder, the one on the left was for the steam and water pipes.

I peered down into the darkness of the deep and steep shaft where the whistle was screaming. I felt my way carefully down the ladder, a couple of rungs. My feet had no feeling whatever.

I knew of course the shaft dipped steeply and dropped at a steep angle into the abyss 230 feet below. But the whistle required to be investigated. It seemed to be somewhere up in the hanging wall or ceiling of the shaft. I climbed the plank fence breast high that divided the ladder shaft from the pipe shaft, and felt up in to the darkness. Bracing myself on rocks and pipes I felt a pipe. The pipe was vibrating with the wild whistle.

I seized a stone and began to bang the pipe. The whistle ceased. A loud banging answered my banging. It was Billie Bell pounding with his wrench. In about four minutes, and they seemed long minutes to me clinging there above that steep dark shaft below the landing, a voice shouted.

"Hello."

I shouted back.

Dr. Robertson felt his way out to the platform above and looked down through the hole at me shouting into the tube.

COMMUNICATION WITH LIFE

We were in communciation with the world, with life itself and from the drill hole through which the drill pipe projected a veritable tap of icy water poured straight down on me. And Billie Bell was trying to tell me he was at the surface and I was trying to find how many feet he was away from us because his voice was so clear I thought he could only be ten feet away.

Many people still cannot understand why we were so reluctant to come to the tube for food.

The whole world to us, of course, was just one eternal loud drip and gurgle and chatter of water. We avoided it as best we could. But when I crept down that hole and on to the ladder, feeling the shaft dropping a sheer 230 feet below me, the ladder greasy, my hands so rough I hardly had any feeling in them, my feet no longer feeling anything at all, and with a nasty climb over a sort of fence to get to the pipe, and then, from the drill hole itself to get a regular drowning from a flow of water like from an inch and a half water tap, for that was precisely what it was, you can understand how soon we came to a decision not to bother about that pipe.

And we weren't hungry anyway. That is, hungry for anything except the sound of the human voice, and the sounds of human action, the drills, the blasting.

COULDN'T HAVE HAD BETTER MEN

Some day I hope to be able to tell you all the strange and curious happenings, the curious conversations. The fancies that came to us.

The dreams we suffered. It will interest you to know that in all the time we were down there suffering to the full stretch of our nerves, none of the three of us emitted a single curse word.

If I had searched the whole wide world, and I have been to the war and down in Florida in the boom days and have mixed with men in many parts of the world, if I had searched the whole world I do not believe I could have found two men with whom I could better have faced that tragedy than Dr. Robertson and Herman Magill. Magill was distressed because he thought he had got us two into the mess. But we soon mended that.

Even when he was dying in pain, every time he recovered enough consciousness to know what was happening to him, it was to beg our pardon for troubling us. They were splendid, and after Magill died, and I had fears for the doctor, I promised myself that I would not be left alone if he went. It would be the three of us, all the way. And I knew I meant it.

These are only a few of the things that occur to me as needing explanation as far as I am concerned. Each one of us did just the best he could. I had no conception, not even in the war, of the full meaning of human comradeship as it was revealed in this tragic affair.

When I am well enough, I will try to do justice to it. I hope everyone understands that every man who came down to rescue us not only was placing himself in the same danger we were in, but what is more, every one of them knew it.

For countless messages from friends known and unknown, I want to say thanks. For countless kindnesses showered on us, on my wife, mother and brother, I don't know how to express our gratitude fully enough.

Just give me your prayers once in a while until these feet remember what they are for again, and maybe I will come and see you and thank you every one, though I guess that would take me all over the world.

SANCTIONS ON ITALIANS MUST BE MAINTAINED

Viscount Cecil Refers To Emperor Selassie as Heroic Figure

LONDON, May 9.—An audience of 10,000 in Albert Hall loudly cheered Viscount Cecil last night when he declared the League of Nations "must still maintain the policy of sanctions and even intensify them if necessary."

Speaking at a meeting called by the League of Nations Union, Lord Cecil declared he did not remember an occasion "when the people of this country were moved since the death of General Gordon."

(General Charles George Gordon was dispatched by the British government to evacuate the Sudan in 1884. Beseiged at Khartum by the Mahdi's forces, Gordon was killed two days before the town was relieved. The delay in dispatching a relief force caused widespread public indignation).

Of the 734 municipal airports in the United States on Dec. 1, 1935, 249 had night lighting equipment.

DOCTOR GETS HIGH AWARD

Another Canadian doctor has won international fame. Dr. Edward A. Archibald, of Montreal, has been awarded the coveted Trudeau Medal of the National Tuberculosis Association of New York for his contributions in the battle against the dread disease.

NAZI CRUISER STEAMING UP ST. LAWRENCE

German Warship Emden is Expected at Quebec Sometime Today

QUEBEC, May 9—The German cruiser Emden, namesake of a vessel that was the terror of allied merchant shipping during the war, sailed up the St. Lawrence river Friday on a courtesy visit to Canadian waters. She reached Father Point and was expected here sometime today.

The Emden is the third German warship to bear that name. The first, a light cruiser under command of the daring Von Muller, sank many allied vessels in the early months of the war before she was destroyed Nov. 9, 1914, by the Australian cruiser Sydney at North Keeling Island. Von Muller, who had always rescued crews of ships he sank, was saved and was allowed to retain his sword.

Kaiser Wilhelm had promised the German people there would be another Emden on the seas and a second vessel of that name was launched in 1915. She was surrendered to the allies at the end of the war and was allotted to France in 1920.

Commissioner For India Appointed

NEW DELHI, India, May 9.—Appointment of Sir Firozkhan Noon, minister of education for the Punjab since 1931, as high commissioner for India in the United Kingdom was announced last night. He succeeds Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, whose term expires at the end of June.

CHURCHILL SOUNDS NOTE OF WARNING AT TORY MEETING

Task Not To Abolish Or Abandon League Of Nations But to Strengthen It For New Trials.

CHINGFORD, Essex, May 9.—Continuance of sanctions against Italy might provoke a "hideous war," Winston Churchill declared here last night addressing a meeting of Conservatives. He termed sanctions "a ludicrous fiasco, if not tragic."

"In the present state of Europe, continuance or aggravation of sanctions might bring about a hideous war without benefitting in the slightest degree the population of Abyssinia," Churchill said.

ONLY WEAKEN RESOURCES

"In trying further to impoverish and weaken the Italian nation, we may only weaken the resources out of which the Abyssinians can be nourished and sustained, and embitter and worsen their fate.

"The task before us is not to abandon or abolish the League of Nations, but to strengthen it for new, graver trials which may lie before it in the future."

MUCH GRAVER VIEW

He defended France's reluctance to follow the sanctions program proposed by Britain, declaring "it is often popular for the British government to strike noble attitudes upon the European scene, but we ought always to remember that continental countries have to take a much graver view."

FINAL DAY OF BOY, GIRL FAIR

With an unusually large attendance and enthusiasm at a high pitch the Edmonton Boys' and Girls' Fair swung into its final day Saturday. Since the Fair opened on Wednesday at the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. buildings hundreds of people have examined the 1,200 exhibits on display and attended the musical, oratorical and dancing contests.

Saturday night a special program of entertainment will be staged in the Y.M.C.A. west gymnasium, when an "Amateur Hour" will be held. The winners will be determined by the audience's applause recorded on the last recording devise. The dancing finals and the presentation of shields and cups will follow the amateur hour entertainment.

Saturday afternoon the famous Boys' and Girls' Fair dog show will be held on the lot behind the Y.M.C.A. The show is so arranged that every boy and girl may bring his or her mutt and compete with a fair chance of winning. For instance, there is the best kept dog class, the loudest howler, the handsomest dog, and the best trained dog.

The fair will close tonight at 10:30 p.m.

HOSTESS TO DEMOCRATS

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of Washington, D. C., attending the arrangements conference in Philadelphia, wears a pleased expression that reflects her satisfaction over plans for the Democratic national convention. She has been designated as official hostess for the party's nominating session.

Hoffman Will Be Responsible For Ellis Parker, Sr.

NEWARK, N.J., May 9.—Governor Harold Hoffman said last night he would assume responsibility for any acts "of which I had knowledge," of Ellis H. Parker, Sr., widely known Burlington county detective, and his son, Ellis Parker, Jr., in the Paul H. Wendel kidnapping.

He asserted that on the basis of present information he would not permit extradition of young Parker, indicted by a Brooklyn grand jury and now a fugitive, or the father, who obtained Wendel's repudiated "confession" of kidnapping the Lindbergh baby.

May Amend Seine Net Fishing Rules

OTTAWA, May 9.—Seine net regulations in the Fraser river estuary in British Columbia may be amended next year, limiting the area where the big nets may be used, Hon. J. E. Michaud, fisheries minister, told the House of Commons last night.

In the meantime—the regulations do not apply this season—the department will investigate their effect on Seine and Gillnet fishermen. "If it is found the regulations are detrimental to any class of fishermen, there is no question they will be revised," the minister promised.

OUTSTANDING MUSICIAN TO BE VISITOR

Sir Ernest MacMillan Will Open Music Festival on Monday Night

Sir Ernest MacMillan, one of Canada's outstanding musicians and principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music will officially open the Edmonton District Musical Festival at McDougall United church at 8 p.m. on Monday. Sir Ernest will arrive here on Sunday and will leave for the east following his opening of the festival, which will continue until Friday, May 15.

NEW DEPARTURE

Opening the festival in the evening, instead of the morning, as has been the case in the past, is proving a new departure that is meeting with wide approval. In addition to the evening opening, there have been some of the competitions scheduled for that evening, which promise to be among the highlights of the whole festival.

Latest figures issued from festival headquaretrs indicate that there are 364 entries, many of which are from outside points, with some coming from south of Red Deer and others from as far west as Westlock.

Following the opening session on Monday, a reception will be held in the church parlors, in order that guests may meet the adjudicators.

THE ADJUDICATORS

The adjudicators this year are Prof. Arthur Collingwood, dean of the music faculty of Saskatchewan University, and Prof. James Adam of the University of Alberta. Prof. Collingwood has been here several times before and is one of the most popular of all those who have served in such an exacting role.

Competitions or sessions will commence at 9 a.m., 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Tuesday to Friday inclusive.

With a large number of entries the festival promises to be one of the most successful in the history of music in this city.

DRINKING BOUT ENDS IN INJURY

Thrown through the door of his room in the Emerald Apartments shortly after 9 p.m. Friday by a half-breed friend during a quarrel which originated in a drinking party, John Mohagen, 45, suffered several deep gashes in his back from flying glass and several stitches were required to close the wounds. Mohagen was attended to by Dr. R. Douglas in the police cells shortly after the battle.

According to reports, Mohagen and his friend, whose name he refused to divulge, had been drinking in the former's room when the argument started. The scuffle which aroused other tenants in the block lasted about two minutes when the half breed came running out in the hall with a radio in his hands and flung it down to the floor below. Police were called, but the man managed to make his escape before constables Art Hamelin and C. Bumstead arrived. Mohagen was taken to the station. Police have a good discription of the half breed and expect an arrest shortly.

Canadian Militia Appointments Made

OTTAWA, May 9.—Two appointments in the Canadian Militia were announced last night by the Department of National Defence. The officers concerned saw oversea service during the Great War.

Lieut.-Col. W. Van Allen, V.D., has been appointed provisional brigade commander of the Seventh Mounted Brigade with headquarters at Regina. He succeeds Lieut.-Col. H. W. Arnold, V.D., who has been transferred to the officer reserve.

Major J. R. Hopkins, D.F.C., V.D., has been appointed to the command of the 14th Canadian Light Horse with regimental headquarters at Climax, Sask. He succeeds Lieut.-Col. Van Allen.

The cities of Bristol, Johnson City, and Kingsport, Tenn., are co-operating in promotion of a joint airport, to cost $50,000.

POPE PLEADS WORLD PEACE

VATICAN CITY, May 9.—Pope Pius XI will plead for a general "pacification of peoples" when he opens the International Catholic Press Exposition next Tuesday, prelates said last night.

The Holy Father will declare, the church officials asserted, that the gathering of many nationalities around him constitutes an example of the peace and fraternity which should be followed by nations themselves.

Gold Shipment

NEW YORK, May 9—The liner Bremen arrived from Europe Friday with $6,750,000 in gold in its hold. All but $550,000 was from France.

ONE NO-PROTEST TAX

There is one new provincial tax against which the people of Alberta are not "kicking"—the Social Service tax which has replaced the former supplementary revenue tax. The rate under the new tax is higher—amounting to three mills of the rateable value of land in town and country, but there have been no protests against the increase.

For the reason that the proceeds will go to meet the cost of taking care of tubercular patients in the Keith sanitarium and in hospitals. As a result, 110 beds are to be provided in Edmonton hospitals for the accommodation of victims of this disease. Treatment will hereafter be free, the province making a grant per day per bed and providing medical services.

No increase of taxation can ever be welcome to those who have to pay, but in this case the end justifies the means, and no tax in the whole catalogue of imposts will be paid more willingly.

THE MONEY CAN BE GOT

Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan secured $3,000,000 from the Bank of Canada with which to meet maturing bonds. To do so he accepted the terms of the loan council scheme, keeping the province free to withdraw from the council if it wants to when the obligations thus incurred have been met.

This stipulation was apparently acceptable to the Dominion, since the loan is being made. Alberta could of course obtain money to pay its defaulted bonds on the same terms, and thereby reduce the interest that has to be paid on the sum from six per cent to four.

Holders of these Alberta bonds will therefore know their money is not being kept from them because the bonds cannot be redeemed, but because the Government does not see fit to redeem them. And the taxpayers will know they are being made to pay the higher rate of interest because their Government does not choose to accept the opportunity to refund.

THE FESTIVAL

Deserving of support of all residents of the community is the Edmonton District Musical Festival which opens at McDougall auditorium on Monday evening. The occasion will be all the more significant because Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, will open the festival. Internationally recognized as a highly talented musician, Sir Ernest's presence will be a valuable feature of the event.

Edmonton should take—and does take—a special interest in the musical festival movement, as it was here that the first of the Canadian musical festivals was organized. Now British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario have instituted provincial competitive events which have met with success similar to that achieved here.

The cultural value of the festivals cannot be too strongly emphasized, more especially when efforts are made to have celebrated musicians act as adjudicators. This year we are fortunate in having Prof. Arthur Collingwood act for vocal and instrumental competitions and Prof. James Adam for elocution.

FEDERAL AID FOR ROADS

Hon. W. A. Fallow wires from Ottawa that $400,000 is the sum the Dominion is prepared to allocate to Alberta for highway-building on a fifty-fifty basis.

Since this is a direct contribution from the federal treasury for a class of improvement the provinces are supposed to make for themselves, it will not do to "look a gift horse in the mouth" with too critical an eye.

But it is fair to say the amount is substantially less than hoped for, less than could be spent to good advantage, and less than is required to absorb the amount of idle labor the Ministers have said would be employed. The announcements of Mr. Fallow were evidently based on expectations of a much larger grant.

To which it should be added that $400,000 is a sizeable sum of money for the Dominion to hand over in one year for expenditure on work outside its own field of responsibility. Matched with a similar sum from the provincial treasury, there will be $800,000 available. That should be sufficient to complete the Jasper highway, reconstruct the disintegrated sections of the Calgary-Edmonton highway, and leave something over for construction elsewhere.

Nor is it beyond hope that further representations may induce the Dominion to raise the ante $100,000, thus making an even $1,000,000 available under the two-way arrangement. That amount will be needed if the work done is to be in keeping with the need for highways and for employment.

A HINT FOR EDMONTON

Calgary may apply to the Public Utilities Commission to take charge of its civic affairs at the beginning of June, according to a summary of the city's financial position published by the Albertan, based on statements of Mayor Davison and members of the city council.

A conference of the Mayor and Aldermen Freeze and Gillman with Premier Aberhart this week apparently failed to disclose any other practicable course. The Premier informed the civic representatives the province could not extend assistance, and saw no advantage in a loan from the Dominion, could such be secured.

As explained by Mayor Davison, the cash position of the city, not its debt obligations, is the source of the trouble. Taxes have not been coming in well, and the problem is to tide over until conditions improve—or until the debt is refunded and relief costs taken over by the Governments. The latter easements, it is suggested, would enable the city to get along without help.

Pending further developments, there is a moral here for the Edmonton council, which is also worrying about unpaid taxes, current and arrears. Fortunately, Edmonton has more leeway in regard to time than Calgary has, not being confronted with an immediate crisis.

Use should be made of this period of grace—to devise measures to encourage prompt payment of the current levy and the catching up of arrears. Something has been done in that direction, but not enough to produce important results. Yet unless collections are speeded up it will be only a question of time before the cash position of this city becomes also embarrassing.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

"Gold! Gold! Gold" What a lure the yellow metal has exercised down the ages.

Chosen as a standard of value because of its scarcity and its proof against corrosion, it has corroded the minds and morals of men. The story of the worship of the golden calf is not a mere legend of an ancient tribe; it is re-enacted in every nation and in every age since gold became the talisman of power.

J. S. Cowper

Nations have been crucified on the cross of gold. A bee-hive of a nation like Belgium gets along prosperously with only 0.6 per cent of the world's gold. Even a great far-flung Empire undergoing new birth, like Russia, manages on 0.5 per cent of the world's gold, while a moribund nation like Spain suffers poverty with 5.7 of the world's gold in its vaults—more than Italy, Germany, Belgium and Russia combined.

Is any spectacle more filled with foolishness than that of a rich nation like Canada, with enormous natural wealth and a virile people, keeping armies of men idle in relief camps for lack of money, dependent for another era of popular prosperity like that which followed the Yukon gold rush, upon the hope of another such find of the useless, corrupting, but incorruptible yellow metal.

* * *

A few nights ago at a private showing in the Rialto theatre I saw the film "Sutter's Gold," that is attracting great crowds in United States. It deals in fictonized manner with persons and events in that interesting chapter of Pacific coast history when the Spanish hold was loosened and British, Americans, Mexicans and Russians were contesting for supremacy—when the Hudson's Bay lands under the Royal charter extended down to the Columbia river, and Mexico held the present day states of Texas, New Mexico and much of California.

I hope the picture will be shown here in due course, for its educative and thought-provoking value. Should it come, this may serve as an introduction to it; should it not, then it will serve as a pale substitute for the lesson so vivdly and dramatically portrayed in the picture.

Johann Sutter was a burly adventurous Swiss—his part in the film play is taken by Edward Arnold—who arrived on the Californian coast in the early years of last century, with 261 Hawaiian natives. Sutter and an American sailor had been shanghaied from Hawaii at the time the natives were decoyed on board and placed under hatches, to be sold as slaves. Sutter released some of the slaves, led a successful fight for the possession of the ship, and sailed her across the Pacific to what is now Lower California. Arrived there he handed the ship back to the manacled captain and his crew.

The Mexicans were having trouble with Russians from Sitka who had settled near the Sacramento. They were glad to let Sutter and his colonists form a buffer colony giving them as much land as Sutter could ride over in seven days. Without tools, livestock or the money to obtain them, the colonists struggled vainly to wrest a living from the land. They were about to petition the Mexican government to give them passage back to their homes when the Russians surprised Sutter with an offer. They would give him their land, livestock, tools, houses, vessels, etc., to be paid for over a period of years. Suddenly they became wealthy farmers. Sutter called his colony New Helvatia, in honor of his native Switzerland.

Years pass. The New Helvetians with Sutter at their head are leading paradisal lives, save that they must build a fort and raise a little army to keep the Mexicans from dispossessing them. Sutter's life of success is crowned when a miller runs in with great news; gold had been found in the mill-stream. He has glittering nuggets for proof.

Sutter becomes as one demented. He will have a golden carriage like that of the English Queen for the woman he loves; he will become richer than all the kings. But when he wants men to garner his crops they are all out at the gold diggings. His growing fields are dug up for nuggets. He is laughed at by the gold-crazed colonists. The building he starts over the mill-stream is dragged down by cheering gold-diggers. Instead of becoming a king and a plutocrat, the master of Helvetia finds himself a lonely, helpless man amid a maddened mob. They drag him from his horse. Wooden houses are torn down to make sluice boxes. His beautiful New Helvetia disappears. Crews of incoming ships desert to seek their fortunes at the gold-diggings. As they hauled on the braces on the way out they had been singing the new chantey, with each verse ending:

"For there's lots of gold, so I've been told,
On the banks of the Sacramento."

* * *

Tragedy thickens as the old man ages. He fights lawsuits to have himself declared owner of the lands he and his colonists once occupied. An appeal court upholds his claim for a day, but reverses itself when riots and shooting start. In one of them Sutter's only son is shot dead before his eyes by an angry miner who seeks to murder the old man.

Then to Washington. Year after year for sixteen years he haunts the government offices, or sits, a pathetic figure in his general's uniform, on the park benches, a butt for the jokes of the Washington youngsters. Worn out with years and waiting, Death overtakes him. His fruitful colony, his friends, his fortune and his family had all been sacrificed to the "lucky find" that started the California gold rush.

One of the merits of gold from a financier's viewpoint is that, by and large, it costs as much to recover from the earth as it will buy. I wonder if the sorrow it brings does not balance, or more than balance, the joy it brings. I could tell tales and name names in support of the proposition.

The Yukon miner in the wreck of the Islander who lost his life in the swim to shore, because he insisted on taking with him his pouch-belt crammed with gold-dust, is typical of thousands to whom the yellow metal proves a weight more than they can carry.

Start Dieting Today

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

I know of many of you are baffled by reading so many different ideas about dieting. Some of these health articles emphasize the need for studying the caloric theory of dietetics; other writers on health subjects urge you to live on uncooked foods, while others have a mania for being opposed to the use of meat. I know how hard it would be for you to get any "head or tail" out of this mixture of advice.

Dr. F. McCoy

However, whether or not you desire to make a radical change in your daily diet arrangements, it will not be hard for you to make some slight changes which will be quite effective in bringing about increased health.

If you have been studying uncooked foods you have learned how to keep down the quantity of food that you are using. You will soon realize that you can live on a much smaller amount of food, provided it is of the right quality. In all of my experience I have never found it necessary to advise a patient to use more food, but it often seems necessary to advise them to use less.

If you have been studying uncooked foods you should appreciate their value enough to add an extra amount to your daily meals with a large salad of such vegetables as lettuce, celery, cucumbers, water cress, etc. Do not have any other food for that meal until you have satisfied yourself with all of the salad that you desire.

You will be surprised to find the salad very filling and satisfactory in every way. If you will use it at the first of the meal, it will be easy to cut down on the amount of the more hearty foods, which you have been accustomed to using. You might even find that you can make one meal, perhaps lunch, of raw food, using no other kind of food at this meal.

If you have been studying vegetarianism, you must by this time appreciate the value of vegetable foods, and know how vital they are in the building of our cell structure. From the cooked and uncooked vegetables we get most of the material for building the bony foundation work for our bodies, such as bones and teeth.

If you will try to diet you will find that you can use an unlimited amount of the non-starchy vegetables without causing yourself any digestive trouble. You can fill up very easily on these foods which are low in food value.

When you have learned the value of meat eating, you will know that meat is not injurious, if used in the proper combinations with other foods, prepared properly and not too much used at one time.

Try some of these ideas and start dieting today.

If you have any dietetic problem which has been bothering you, feel free to write to me and to request advice. Probably, one of the articles along this line which has already been prepared, will answer your question. I will be glad to give your problem careful consideration and if you require a special answer, then a personal reply to your letter will be sent you. With your diet question, please enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents in stamps.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Ward W. inquires: "Are there any exercises which are helpful in overcoming prolapsus?"

ANSWER: When the vital organs are prolapsed or fallen, such prolapsus is usually accompanied by the formation of adhesions and the adhesions will tend to bind the sagged organs, making it that much more difficult to overcome the abnormal position. Manipulative treatment will then be needed to remove the adhesions before much help will be derived from exercise. As a general rule, the most stubborn adhesions form around the large intestine. Once the colon is freed from adherent tissue through suitable treatment, the patient is then ready to go ahead and use special exercises and will benefit from them. The best results are secured through taking those exercises described in my article called SLANTING BOARD EXERCISES. This article has been mimeographed for distribution and I will be glad to send it to anyone who is interested. It is inadvisable to try to begin strenuous exercises of this nature as long as there is present any soreness or tenderness in the abdominal area. Two articles on Prolapsus are also available. To obtain a copy of the material on the SLANTING BOARD EXERCISES, or on PROLAPSUS write to me and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and ten cents. The articles on Prolapsus also provide some information on adhesions.

Poems That Live

TIME LONG PAST

Like the ghost of a dear friend dead
Is Time long past.
A tone which is now forever fled,
A hope which is now forever past,
A love so sweet it could not last,
Was Time long past.

There were sweet dreams in the night
Of Time long past:
And, was it sadness or delight
Each day a shadow onward cast
Which made us wish it yet might last—
That Time long past.

There is regret, almost remorse,
For Time long past.
'Tis like a child's beloved corse
A father watches, till at last
Beauty is like remembrance, cast
From Time long past.

SIDE GLANCES—By George Clark

"I only want to scare him. Is there some way I can just almost get a divorce?"

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1786 Colonel Peter Hunter, then in command at Niagara, had a visitor, a Quaker named Moore, who had brought his family to settle in Upper Canada and had a strange tale to tell. He said that after the defeat of the French by Sir William Johnson in 1759, some of the French garrison escaped into the interior of New York. One of them, wounded, called at the Moore home and was cared for until his death from effects of wounds. He left a pocket book, in which was a written statement in French that just before the surrender of Fort Niagara the French military chest was buried close to the flag staff, but that just as it had been placed in the ground, a shot from a British gun killed one of the fatigue party, whose body fell into the pit. The officer in command, not daring to wait, ordered the hole to be filled in and the party fled.

Moore believed the story and asked permission to dig for the supposed treasure; he offered to give Hunter a share of the prize. The colonel laughed at the man's credulity, but gave him permission to dig, so long as he filled up the hole again, with the provision that all Moore found would be his own. Moore engaged a party and the next day began the work under the supervision of a sergeant's guard and some of the officers. When the diggers had got down about seven feet they discovered the skeleton of a man, which bore out the French soldier's narrative. Colonel Hunter was notified and he ordered the digging to be stopped until the next day. And the hole and the flagstaff were left under guard of a sentry.

There was a heavy snowstorm that night (snow in May was not uncommon at Niagara, for was not the famous Judge Robert Nicol killed by driving over the river bank near Queenston on May 3, 1824?). Three days passed before digging was possible. Then Moore and his party returned to work, but, according to Hon W. W. Riddell, the flagstaff had been removed to another part of the fort, no trace could be found of where it had stood (which seems most unlikely), and Moore was refused permission to do any more digging.

Nobody has ever yet solved the puzzle: Who moved the flagstaff? Was the French chest recovered? If so, by whom? Certainly Moore never found it and the truth of the French soldier's narrative memo was never ascertained. But it certainly looks as if there had been crooked work somewhere.

TREATIES

Editor Bulletin: Your correspondent Larry, still persists in "asking for more." I suppose, like Oliver Twist, he has a reason for it. Oliver, though, needed food for the "inner man" while Larry needs food for thought.

You say, Larry, that the British Empire promised to back up Belgium in case of hostilities. Britain did, Larry, only Britain. And Britain isn't the whole British Empire—yet.

Higher education is a great boon. It teaches you many things: one, for instance, that no nation has ever really kept a treaty. So, you see, there never was a golden age of treaty-keeping—not even in the days of 3R education, mercifully now obsolete.

I am afraid, Larry, that your attitude towards the League stamps you as a reactionary. You are one of those people, festooned with cob-webs, who have always told the great advocates of progress like Lincoln, James Watt, and Lindbergh, that "it couldn't be done."

JUNIUS.

RESENTS TAXES

Editor Bulletin: I am interested in the average woman's reaction to the new tax. Can't we mothers and wives get together somehow and protest and also positively refuse to pay it. Also demand the $25 or more per month promised us definitely both before and since the election of Premier Aberhart.

Today I had to pay tax on boys' pants, liniment and patching rubber for a bike, does Premier Aberhart consider any of these three things luxuries?

It's all very well for him, with his thirty years in a good paying job and now his $8,000 plus per year, not forgetting the shekels he gathers in here and in Calgary each Sunday, but to the small wage earner, it's a crime.

He misled everyone with his promises he never intended to keep and the only motive I think, that actuated him at all was his own personal greed. So women let's get together and demand all Aberhart promised us and defuse to pay any of his unjust taxes.

WHAT IS THIS TRIUMPH?

We may confidently expect that Mussolini's triumph in Ethiopia, no matter how much it glitters and is not gold, will greatly impose itself in the world. Already the perverse chorus of weak recrimination is heard. The concert of the League powers which sought to restrain Mussolini is blamed. Baldwin is blamed and Eden and Flandin and Laval. The League is blamed because it did not make war on Mussolini. The government of Great Britain is blamed for not making the act of war which it would have been to close the Suez Canal. Anybody and anything are blamed except the men and the politics that began it.

And the last thing which it is necessary to affirm is that, failure or not, it will again be necessary to attempt in the world what the League has attempted. It will be found in the long run—however brilliant the success of it may seem to be now—that the crime of Mussolini does not pay. For if no promise is to bind and any contract may be broken, then the tribe of mankind must revert to the law of the tooth and claw, and the names of justice and law must be expunged from the lexicon.—Vancouver Province.

Sunshine Shafts

Sweet Young Thing (at baseball game): "Oh, look! We have a man on every base."

Another S.Y.T.: "That's nothing! So has the other team!"

Si Brown stood on the corner of the main street in the busy city and gazed with open mouthed astonishment at the stream of vehicles moving past. Finally he turned to his companion and said in an awed voice:

"Jee-rusalem, Hiram, they shore are behind with their haulin', ain't they?"

Johnny was in the habit of swearing mildly when anything happened that did not please him. One day the minister heard him and he said: "Johnny, don't you know that it is wrong to swear. Why, every time I hear you swear a cold chill runs down my back."

"Gee," said Johnny, "if you had been at my house the other day when my dad caught his nose in the clothes wringer, you'd have froze to death."

"If you took a magnifying glass," he said, "and looked into the lungs of a dog, what would you see?"

Everyone gave it up after being told the "air" and "lungs" were incorrect answers.

"I am sorry to say, my dear, that I haven't a little girl."

"How is your little boy, then?"

"I haven't a little boy, either."

"Then what are yours?"

The Dawn Of Democracy

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

Cables showing that France has finally proposed a tariff truce be established with Germany, so that the world outlawry against German commerce will be ended is the first definite indication that sanity is returning to Europe. A twenty-five year peace pact on the basis of bringing back world trading rights to every nation has in it the germs of success. When a nation of seventy million people has either to starve or fight, the answer is war. A prosperous nation sends money all around the world; whereas a nation suffering from trade stagnation is a constant war threat.

The difficulties which the League of Nations has run up against in trying to establish peace by negotiation have proved two things. First war is a certainty unless trade bars are let down. Second, there is not yet in the world a really democratic form of government. So long as the individual life is made lower than the money sanctity, the world is still struggling along under money autocracy—with electoral movements from time to time which indicate the dawn of democracy.

With very helpful inconsistency the British Government while publicly preaching the sanctity of vested rights, has increased money in circulation to an all-time high. This is a great step forward towards democracy, because the more money made available for the solution of transactions the more business can be done and the more employment maintained. Also this is the first time in British history when, with the Empire on a peace basis, the circulation of money has been recognized as a restoration factor. In the past it took a war to bring about the pouring out of floods of money into circulation.

In Canada there is no political leadership in any political party giving a public lead into a restoring democracy; and the nation has every factor to make a restoring democracy safe, honest, and successful.

The Dunning budget, with its tariff lowerings, is a helpful compromise; but it is only a compromise which cannot reach our basic trouble of a concentrated organized manufacturing industry and an unorganized or disorganized (according to your point of view) group of producing communities which are given no adequate supply of money in circulation and no transportation facilities whereunder to obtain necessaries of life and of industry at uniform delivered prices fairly comparable with world values. Until these things are done there can be no nationwide establishment of community industries. Once these things are done we will be ready for thirty million people in Canada and the railway problem will change into an effort to handle the traffic instead of offering surplus railway car space for sale.

It is absolutely true that Canada is only approaching the dawn of democracy. It is also true that Canadian experiences have proved that a money autocracy can never build up a great democratic nation because the interest collecting factor is the mainspring of a financial autocracy; and the necessity of putting money into circulation as a public utility is poison to a financial autocracy. This does not make interesting reading, but it contains truths a proper understanding whereof is vital to Canadian restoration.

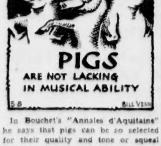
The Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.



In Bouchet's "Annales d'Aquitaine" he says that pigs can be so selected for their quality and tone or squeal that beautiful harmonies can be produced—in other words, a porker pipe organ, or a quartet. Louis XI, King of France, had his villeins select pigs with certain tones and would have them mount steps on a table, where they were prodded, and the squeals blended together into "beautiful music." The varieties of harmony thus produced were said to be a great delight to the King.

Listen Inn

Song and Dance . . .

First of a string of big-time bands to come here—Paul Pendarvis and his troupe—will have a one-night stand in the city May 22. Pendarvis, whose dansapation is fed to NBC's Red network six nights each week from San Francisco's Palace hotel, is to take his organization, the thirteen-piece band, torchsingers, specialty acts and crooners, on a full swing across the prairies. Local kilocycles will carry a matinee performance. Should the entertainment click, Benny Goodman, Jimmy Grier and Carol Lofner will hit the prairie trail.

Three weeks after Guy Watkins and his torrid tooters close tonight at the Peacock Room, the boys trek east to Watrous and the city says farewell to Johnny (the Mad Monk), Van Deelan and Harry (that man again) McAnsh, the hot brass twins who are lining up contracts taking them to England.

When Les Roberts opens at Lakeview tonight he will have two ex-Mel Hamill bandsmen on the stand and a stack of late pop song releases. Hamill, they say, is pulling out of his Winnipeg stand for an engagement in Harry New York Cabaret in Chicago after which the boss will open a new spot in downtown Toronto.

Gordon Mile-a-Minute Williamson, the verbal machine gun sportscaster, will pack his bags in September and at the nod from his cigarette-making sponsors go to Montreal to handle the mike at hockey games. The sports-speiler given his big break on the Allan Cup broadcasts put it over in a style that had his bosses talking of next winter contracts.

Heading tonight's Hit Parade which airs over CBS-WABC kilocycles at seven is "Goody Goody", followed by "Sing An Old Fashioned Song To a Young Sophisticated Lady", "Laughing Irish Eyes", "It's Been So Long", "You", "The Touch of Your Lips", "Let Yourself Go", "Would You", "You Started Me Dreaming" and "I'm Putting All My Eggs In One Basket".

Lewisham Man Makes Teeth Of Elephant Tusk

British United Press

SIDNEY, N.S.W., May 9. — T. Coughlan, of Lewisham, has made himself a set of false teeth from the tusk of an elephant slain in Africa 100 years ago.

The teeth are dazzlingly white, light in the jaw, and very strong. Coughland does not expect the teeth to go yellow in his lifetime, and says the sharp edges make short work of the toughest steak.

Wheelman's Corner

By R. J. KELLY
President of the Edmonton Cycling Club

With the season once more in full swing, it is very gratifying to find the popularity of sport bikes in our town is ever increasing, and the writer is confident before the summer is over Edmonton will be definitely on the map in yet another sphere of sport.

Some of the young men in the clubs are purely racing cyclists and are all out to catch the prizes and trophies being offered, and we feel sure that the competition this season is going to be keen, so we are looking forward to a real season of sport, and we wish the boys all the success in the world.

FOR HEALTH

During the last few weeks there has appeared another type of wheelman in this locality, those who cycle for fun and good health, and the ladies, bless 'em, are keen sports, too. When the Edmonton Cycling Club ventured to invite ladies into the club it was with some misgivings, some of our racing fraternity were very doubtful if it could be a success. Others, the more mature and dignified brethern, cried in consternation, "It can't be done." Well, the call went out for females interested, and the response overwhelmed even the most enthusiastic members and today the female membership in the Edmonton C.C. exceeds the male.

FIRST OUTING

On Sunday last the above club had their first picnic of the season at White Mud Creek, and those pedal pushers sure can do their stuff around a camp fire. Much credit is due to Mr. Stanley "Spasms" Morgan, the club secretary, whose untiring efforts make all club gatherings a success.

The first important competition between clubs this season takes place at the Highland games on May 25 and the boys are training hard and looking forward to keen competition. There are many "dark horses" in the line-up this year, unknown riders, and we are expecting many surprises on the big day.

THE VARIED GAME

Let me wander around for awhile and "yarn" by the wayside. We wheelmen in Edmonton are particularly fortunate in having more miles of good paved road than any other locality in the province, and I am convinced from experience that cycling is unlike any other game, because one can play it gently. Some folks will say it ceases to be a game when it is gently played and becomes a means of travel. But I do not agree, because however quietly I trip along there comes a moment in the course of a ten-mile jaunt when I play the game for the sheer exhilaration, that short, sharp sprint on a stretch of good road for the purpose of proving there is still a bit of "kick" in the legs. The boy still lingers in the make-up of the cyclist, for the cares of yesterday or tomorrow have no part in his mental outlook when he takes to the road for the week-end.

BEST OF ALL

To me this is the main reason why cycling is the best of all games, you can play it any length to suit your mood and fitness, instead of driving yourself to your utmost for the sake of the game. People think that one rides a bicycle because one is healthy, whereas the truth lies in the fact that one is healthy because one rides a bicycle.

Cycling is so common and so simple that people do not realize its valuable attributes to health and pleasure. It is easier to ride in a car, more expensive, less healthy, and a trifle more ostentatious, yet health is the greatest asset of life, the one supreme gift worthy of preservation.

EXERCISE

From observation I am quite certhain that why some people say cycling is hard work is due entirely to wrong conception and practice. The splay-footed and instep pedal-pushers predominate and the body swing in their efforts for hasty travel all makes cycling an inelegant mode of travel. "Any fool can ride a bicycle." But I once heard a grand old man say, "A cyclist is a wise man."

So let's have many cyclists in Edmonton, always realizing that we have much to learn.

RULES

Reproduced herewith are a few "Golden Rules for Cyclists" with apologies to Sidney Brotherton, a lifelong cyclist of the midlands of England.

1.—Own the best bicycle you can afford, and maintain it in sound condition.

2.—Always count on the other fellow to do the wrong thing.

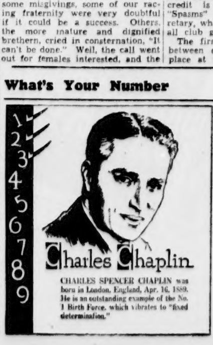
3.—There is always some jackass about to rush out of a side road.

4.—Ride fast if you want to, but, unless you're racing, don't be in a hurry.

5.—Train your ears to inform you what is coming up behind. Much can happen while you turn your head.

6.—Your neck is your own, if by risking it you will make someone else risk his, then don't risk it.

What's Your Number Numerology Series —By Mario



CHARLES SPENCER CHAPLIN was born in London, England, Apr. 16, 1889. He is an outstanding example of the No. 1 Birth Force, which vibrates to "fixed determination."

1 Birth Force

His is also the number of independence, driving force and a strong personality. This is seen in his refusal to go into talkies; his great success as head of his own film company and his ability to make his own personality the dominating force in both the management of his enterprises and in his productions themselves. He needs no supporting cast, for "Charlie," himself, is the picture. He went on the stage when a child, as his parents were performers and started out with a dancing group, on tour in English provinces.

3 Personality

He finally had his own act in vaudeville, and then went to Hollywood where he appeared in a comedy that gave him a contract with Keystone. He received $150 a week and, almost at once, was a star. His funny walk, derby hat, cane, as well as the tiny mustache all became world-famous in a short time. With "3" his Personality number, Chaplin is really just the opposite of the ragamuffin he portrays on the screen, for this is a vibration of perfect sartorial art, which he, in real life, typifies. It is the number of extravagance, another Chaplin characteristic. His Heart number is "7"—meaning "hard to convince in love."

2 Destiny

He started his own film company in 1912 and all his pictures have been tremendously successful. Mildred Harris, his first wife, was a "6" and Numerology says a "1" is not understood by a "6." His second wife, Lita Gray, a "2" was likewise not a good choice, as a "1" causes trouble for a "2."

MACDONALD AND EDDY HEAD "ROSE MARIE" CAST

In a production sweeping with song and scented with romance, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, those celebrated co-stars of "Naughty Marietta", came to the screen of the Capitol today in the well-known characters of the light opera, "Rose Marie".

Under their magic spell the full beauty of "The Indian Love Call", "Rose Marie, I Love You", "Song of the Mounties", and other classics from the Herbert Stothart-Rudolf Friml score, live again.

More charming even than they were in the record-breaking "Naughty Marietta", "Rose Marie" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer triumph.

Filmed almost entirely out-of-doors, in the mountain-lake country of the northwest, the production is a pictorial sensation. Glimmering lakes, towering peaks, dangerous passes, all the beauty of nature, serves as background for the romantic saga of the great northwest.

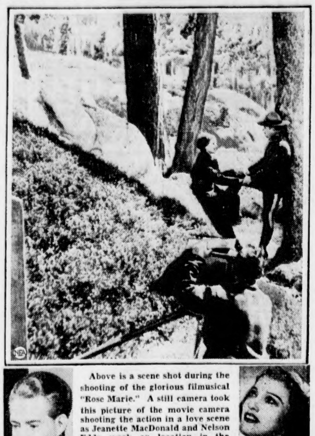
"Rose Marie" is the story of a Canadian grand opera singer who travels incognito into the backwoods regions in search of her brother, a criminal fugitive from justice.

Also searching for the brother is Sergeant Bruce, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They meet and fall in love, until she realizes the mission of the other.

The crashing climax and poignant ending of the story will be remembered long after most pictures are forgotten.

One of the outstanding sequences is the Totem Pole Indian Dance, the grotesque set mounted on a sand-pit extending into a broad lake. Peopled by more than a thousand dancers, lavish in costume, with music thrilling beautiful, it sets a new high for effect photography and spectacular direction.

A strong supporting cast assists Miss MacDonald and Eddy in "Rose Marie", among them being James Stewart as the criminal brother, Reginald Owen as the star's manager; Allan Jones, who scored so decisively in "A Night at the Opera"; George Regas, Robert Grieg, Una O'Connor and Lucien Littlefield. Also present is Gilda Gray of "Follies" fame, whose new version of her celebrated "Shimmy" dance is one of the highlights of a striking cafe scene.



Above is a scene shot during the shooting of the glorious filmusical "Rose Marie." A still camera took this picture of the movie camera shooting the action in a love scene as Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy work on location in the Tahoe Mountains. Photographically, "Rose Marie" is one of the most beautiful films ever brought to the screen. Inset, left to right, are close-ups of Miss MacDonald and the opera star.

BIG CAST IS FEATURE FOR STRAND FILM

Herbert Marshall Starring In "Till We Meet Again"

Herbert Marshall, star of "Till We Meet Again", coming to the Strand theatre today, "won" thirty dollars merely by changing uniforms for one of the sequences.

During the taking of the picture he wore some eighteen changes of uniforms and there was constant confusion on the actor's part. He would leave articles of value in each of them, forgetting to remove them with each change.

One of the first costumes he wore was a British army officer's uniform. Then for five weeks of the production he made various changes, finally returning to the officer's uniform. Donning the coat in his dressing room, Marshall put his hand in his pocket and drew out thirty dollars. He had left the money in the coat weeks before but had forgotten where he put it.

"Till We Meet Again" is the story of two sweethearts, an English matinee idol and a Viennese actress in London caught in the sudden maelstrom of the World War. They decide to marry and escape to America but the actress is recalled to Germany to take up her duties as a spy. Puzzled by his sweetheart's sudden disappearance, the actor joins the British forces and is assigned to the Intelligence service. The manner in which both meet as opposing spies, in a German war office, how the Viennese saves her lover from death at the risk of her own life, and both narrowly escape a firing squad, makes a screen story that is filled with thrilling suspense and action.

CAPITOL ADDS NEW HEARING AIDS SERVICES

Manager Wilson First in Field in New Service For Patrons

In keeping with the policy of "the best in talking picture entertainment," Manager Walter Wilson, with the co-operation of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, of which the Capitol is a unit, has now the distinction of being the first manager in western Canada to provide his "Forgotten Audience," those with impaired hearing, with an instrument by which they can enjoy motion picture presentations fully through the medium of "Hearing-aid" equipment.

Having received a number of requests during the past few years for a device to enable those who were unfortunately prevented from enjoying the talking pictures because of deafness or sub-normal hearing, Mr. Wilson made an appeal to J. J. Fitzgibbons, general manager of Famous Players, with the result that this equipment will be completely installed by Monday.

Under the supervision of S. B. Sturrock of the Dominion Sound Equipments Ltd., skilled workmen for some time past have been busy installing this unique equipment. It is of the very latest design and completely modern in every respect.

The Capitol theatre is providing this new service at no extra cost to the patrons. This equipment has been installed in the Loge section only, and further information should be obtained from the management or the doorman.

Two Features For Rialto's New Program

"Don't Gamble With Love," Columbia's revealing screen drama of what goes on in New York's gilded palaces will head the new feature program at the Rialto theatre starting Monday. Bruce Cabot will be seen in the starring role, climaxing his sensational success as the murderous kidnapper in "Show Them No Mercy." Sharing the top roles with Cabot, is the blonde-tressed Ann Sothern, who stepped up to screen fame on the successive triumphs of her three most recent performances in "Grand Exit", "You May Be Next!" and "Hell-Ship Morgan".

Bruce Cabot's role is that of a top-hat gambling entrepeneur, proprietor of a profitable gaming club.

Seen in support of Miss Sothern and Bruce Cabot are Irving Pichel, head of a gambling syndicate; Ian Keith, a loyal and devoted friend of the circumstance-stricken family; Richard Livernoin, 6-months old blue-eyed baby who makes his screen debut in "Don't Gamble With Love"; Elisabeth Risdon as the baby's irascible but loving nurse and Thurston Hall as the "honest" broker who dupes Cabot.

"Federal Agent", heralded as the one picture Bill Boyd has starred in which is comparable to his noted success "The Volga Boatman," is the other feature on the Rialto program.

Based on the stories of government agents' activities which are appearing daily in the newspapers of the country, "Federal Agent" brings plenty of action to the screen as it outlines the attempts of international spies to get possession of the formula of a secret super-explosive invented by an American professor.

Screened in the hiding places of the international spy ring and headquarters of the G-Men, "Federal Agent" shows with surprising fidelity the progress of the government agents from the time they take the trail of a suspect until he is "brought in."

"Breath o' Spring" dinnerware will, as usual, be given away free to the ladies.

Painting Hobby

A little known hobby of Herbert Marshall's is his painting and drawing. The British star, currently appearing with Gertrude Michael in Paramount's "Forgotten Faces," spends many evenings at home with pencil and paint brush.

A disappearing top which slips inside the rear deck is featured on one of the newer French cars.

CHAMBER HEAD

JOHN BLUE,
secretary-manager of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and graduate of Toronto University, tells young people what are necessary qualifications to secure positions with business men.

Ability, Training and Pleasing Manner Help in Securing Jobs

By EVELYN BUXTON

"A practical and level-headed philosophy of life was stressed by John Blue, managing secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, when he was asked for his advice as to requisites for success in the business world.

Mr. Blue is the third of the leaders in business and education whose opinions have been consulted by the Bulletin in an attempt to provide helpful advice to young people who desire to obtain and become successful in a vocation in life.

His advice would seem to be typical of the man whose genial personality and practical business sense have won recognition both in the city and throughout the province.

LIKES YOUNG PEOPLE

It is given additional weight by the fact that Mr. Blue is not only a successful business man but one whose interest in the work of young people has never wavered.

"Young men and women looking for a position in any line of industry or commerce should have a normal, healthy outlook on life and its problems." That is the prime requisite which he considers necessary for success in any kind of endeavor in life.

"Fads, fancies and unproven theories are useless baggage in the race," he says. "A person must have confidence that ordinary business is conducted on a give and take basis of service to its customers and the community. It is not only the general manager and executive but the whole staff who must realize that the business is not being run for the sake of any one person alone."

EDUCATION NECESSARY

Mr. Blue emphasized the importance of a fine general education, of honesty and general intelligence.

"Employers do not require that a novice should have a detailed knowledge of the new task but they have a right to expect that an apprentice should have an honest intention to learn, and intelligence enough to show progressive proficiency."

For stenographers and girls who would obtain office employment, Mr. Blue had special words of advice: "They should be especially careful to be expert spellers. When they see a word in shorthand they should visualize the word in the dictionary, because the English language is non-phonetic in character. In dress they should be discriminating, aiming at good taste, neatness and simplicity. Also they should extend their love of order to include their desks and other office equipment which should be kept neat and orderly at all times."

CHARACTER IMPORTANT

The personal character of the candidate was, Mr. Blue considered one of the greatest factors influencing the success or failure of the person in the business world.

He emphasized that courtesy, affability and good temper both in dealing with the office staff and in dealing with clients, was tremendously important.

"The owner of a business enterprise demands that his employees should give the same consideration to his clients as he would give himself," said Mr. Blue.

"Life, in a business office," he indicated, "could become unpleasant for all concerned if any one person in the office permitted himself or herself to give free rein to emotions. Business, though it requires such human qualities as tact and consideration, must in its functioning, run like a machine or it cannot be carried on successfully. In this necessity, small rivalries and petty grudges cannot be allowed to creep in among employers, but each must co-operate to the best of his ability with the rest of the staff.

CAN CULTIVATE QUALITIES

"Though personality is in part a gift," he said, "a sucessful business personality can be cultivated by observing the rules outlined. All these qualities, he said, are translatable into the one word, character, without which any success, in no matter what line of life, resolves itself into dust and ashes and failure."

CONSCRIPTION IS DEBATE AT COLLEGE FINAL

Winners Oppose Use Of Conscription For War By Canada

Taking the negative of the proposition "That Canada Should Adopt Conscription", Holly Freeman and Hugh Knott won the Whitehorn Cup in the final round of the Alberta College debating League. The winners defeated Gordon McCormick and Winona Taylor by a narrow margin. Presentation of the cup was made by the donor, Miss Whitehorn, a member of the staff of the College.

The debate was well attended by the students who were particularly interested in the remarks of Rev. A. E. Black who gave the judges' decision. Other judges were P. Bolton and James Layton. Dr. F. S. McCall acted as chairman. Instrumental numbers were given by Jack Blower, violinist, and Beatrice Jackson, pianist.

Spring in the air brings the minds of the students to sport and the tennis courts are now being put in shape and an interclass softball league is being organized. The softball league is expected to play an important part in the life of Alberta College students for the next few weeks as a relief from preparation for final examinations. Frank McCall is taking time from his arduous studies to play a prominent part in the softball league.

C.G.I.T. Affairs

Erskine departmental C.G.I.T. is preparing for a Mother and Daughter banquet to be held on May 15. Mary Alexander will act as chairman. Greetings will be brought from the Edmonton Girls' Work Board by Mrs. E. Johnson and from the Girls' Council by Annie Reid.

A welcome speech to past leaders will be given by Mrs. G. Leitch. Mr. H. Fazackerlay is to be present as the representative of the Sunday School. Margaret Reid is to speak on "Our Mothers" and "Building More Friendships Through Missions" is to be the subject of Helen Murphy. Rev. D. C. Ramsay is to give a talk on "The Church as a Living God."

The Banquet will close with a candle lighting service in which Jean Morgan is to take a speaking part.

Irene Little, "Spartans" group, has been making pot holders as a project. A hike is planned for May 13.

The "Jolly Juniors" intermediate group has been making a layette. A successful hike was held by this group recently.

Miss Sutcliffe entertained her group at supper at a recent meeting. Jean Cook's group held a theatre party Monday in place of their regular weekly meeting.

The "Challengers" senior group has been dressing a doll in C.G.I.T. uniform and writing letters to be sent to an African mission school.

The Northern Lights group presented a very successful entertainment on May 1. A play "Not a Man in the House" was acted as well as a short skit "The Fatal Quest." A piano solo by Jean Colburn and a violin solo by Mary Chandler were also features of the program.

The "Climbers" senior C.G.I.T. group at Avonmore held a very successful hike on Saturday, May 2. Kay Smith, leader of the group, conducted the devotional. The members have completed silhouettes to be presented to their mothers as Mothers' Day gifts at a short service after the church service on Sunday, May 10.

HOLY TRINITY IS SCENE OF LIVELY SCOUT CONCERT

With Ian McIntosh as master of ceremonies, the 6th Edmonton Troop of Holy Trinity church again upheld their reputation for presenting real entertainment with their annual concert which was presented this week. An exhibition of bridge building under the supervision of Vernon Pearson was perhaps the most interesting display. Another headline of the evening was the exhibition presented by three Hungarian dancers.

The Troop's pyramids and tumbling again created a great hit with the audience. Community singing in which the audience joined was a feature of the evening. A happy conclusion to the evening was the Camp Fire at which District Commissioner E. Clark presented the 6th Scout Master, E. W. D. Wilson, with his Warrant as Leader of the Troop. Among those contributing to the success of the evening were Mrs. Percy Cooper, accompanist, Vernon Pearson and Sergt.-Major Barker.

New System Of Education Evolved By Young Principal Gives Youths Practical Training For Life Work

Youngsters Now Taught New Method

Yorkton Plan Gives Students Chance to Learn Practical Side

By J. F. C. WRIGHT

YORKTON, Sask., May 9.—Forty collegiate students comprising the journalism class here—determined not to be unemployed immediately on graduation—entered the offices of The Yorkton Enterprise and took over the paper for a week. They wrote editorials, interviewed citizens, covered meetings, reported fires and edited telegraph copy. They drafted advertising, inquired into curculation, looked into the backshop and got the pressmen on their side.

No, this was not a sporadic student uprising. It was part of a well-laid plan—"the Yorkton plan"—instituted last year by S. W. Steinson, principal of Yorkton collegiate, receiving full support of the school board and co-operation of Yorkton citizens.

Mr. Steinson — of Icelandic descent, quiet mannered, blue eyed and 37—saw the need for co-ordinating academic study with practical work. Bob Priestley helped. Mr. Priestley is Yorkton representative for the Manitoba Free Press and the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, and this veteran newspaperman contributed his time to teach aspiring young journalists in class-room last term.

EVOLVES NEW PLAN

But the "Yorkton plan" doesn't stop with journalism. It embraces radio construction, carpentering cooking, dancing, economics and citizenship. Mayor Robert Barbour addressed a class in civic government, and Fire Chief T. Jenkins outlined fire protection. Next term the plan will include watchmaking and blacksmithing. Students who receive more than 70 per cent on their first period examination paper will be allowed to choose for themselves whether they will spend a portion of their school hours in a bakery shop or painting landscapes.

The collegiate principal divides the school year into four terms of fifty teaching days each. The year's academic work is covered in the first three terms. Then the students are given a test examination, and those receiving 70 per cent or more in any subject are finished with that subject for the term. Thus they have periods free from academic study and these they devote to practical work and art of their own choosing.

Students of the journalism class at Yorkton Collegiate are shown top in the office of the Yorkton Enterprise, getting out an issue of the paper. Below, the home economics class. Inset, S. W. Steinson, principal of Yorkton Collegiate.

The plan aims at three definite objectives. First—to allow clever students to travel at their own speed. Second—to stimulate incentive to work. Third—to encourage individual initiative, decrease "parrot learning" on the part of the pupils and "spoon-feeding" on the part of teachers.

SAY YOUTH MUST LEARN

"To be turned out of school or university like a trained seal is not in itself sufficient to ensure employment today," Mr. Steinson feels certain. "Young men and women must shoulder the responsibility of thinking for themselves. They should examine the causes of unemployment, depression and insecurity. Then they as citizens can work together to make whatever social and economic changes are necessary for their well being. No one is going to do it for them.

"Our scheme is a modest attempt to show that there is a tragic waste of time in present teaching methods, and we are earnestly striving to evolve a system which will bring additional enrichment to the lives of young men and women in our community," Mr. Steinson said. The Yorkton Collegiate principal was graduated from the University of Saskatchewan, 1922.

STUDENTS FAVOR IT

J. H. McKechnie, Saskatchewan's deputy minister of education, has sent a memorandum of the plan to school principles throughout the province. J. A. McLeod, inspector of high schools, congratulated the Yorkton principal "for taking this forward step and his staff and board for their loyal and enlightened support. The plan has distinct educational possibilities in comparison with the old regime," the inspector said.

Dr. D. J. Brass, chairman of Yorkton collegiate school board, pointed out that "co-operation had made institution of the plan possible with no additional cost to the taxpayers."

The students like it, too. Six weeks ago by secret ballot they voted 235 to 40 in favor of retaining the new system.

FLOWERS Every Child Should KNOW

By INNA McELROY

The Shooting Star

In field and pasture, along sunny roadsides, and branches one can find Alberta's prettiest flower—the shooting star. Can't one just look at this flower, and see how it got its name? The purple red petals that lay back from the stamen remind one of flames and sparks following a shooting star.

Unlike most flowers, the petals cup backward instead of forward. They are rather long petals rounded on the ends. At the base of the petals, the flower is yellow with black stamens.

The flower grows on a tall, reddish stem directly from the centre of the plant. The leaves lie close to the ground, and are long and slender. They are a light green in color. The flower is very fragrant.

Perfect Beauty Of Flowers Is Dedicated To Perfect Love Of Mother

Whether Young or Old She'd Love Posies For Her Adornment

TO MY MOTHER ON MOTHER'S DAY

Dearest! you will laugh a little if, just because this is Mother's Day, I try to begin to tell you all the things that both of us know so well, for I am just so much of you, and you of me, that we understand. And just because this is Mother's Day you won't want to be placed upon a pedestal—it is a little stupid isn't it—with all the family officially worshipping you, because we remember, Sunday is Your Day. Especially, when we all know that "Monday is wash day, and Tuesday ironing day," as the old rhyme says, and that home, that has to be run in homely ways, whatever may be your station, has to have you at the helm—or else there is no home. I won't put you on a pedestal on Sunday. Neither of us would like it. But I shall wear a flower for you, to honor you. And I should like to feel that it is not a flower that will fade as Sunday's flowers must, but a flower that I can wear in my heart for you, every day of all the year. And too often, mother, it does fade, sometimes it is crushed, but, oh, it will never die.

I am trying to think of you in one picture, and I cannot. I see you, just as Mother. On Sunday we must remember the holy look! You are supposed to have the "holy look" on Mother's Day you know. But I know you won't have it, just for that. But I have its image here with the flower in my heart. I have it as a covenant of little things just between you and me.

Come here, I have something to show you. Mother, can't we get away together for a minute, and talk a little how I steal away your minutes, day by day! But you have gone just a little ahead of me on the road and you know the way. You have pointed the sunny paths to me, because you yourself chose the sunshine. Your heart is sweet with sunshine of all the years. Remember, when I wear a flower for you tomorrow, it is to honor you.—E.R.B.

TREASURE

By Helen Welshimer

Wherever your treasure is, my dear,
That's where your heart will be . . .
That is a verse in an old, old Book
My grandmother read to me.

Treasure in Heaven will never fail.
Often I've heard her say.
Thieves can't pilfer nor moths corrupt
Gifts you have stored away

Dearest, your love is a precious thing;
Therefore, my heart's with you
Should thieves come stealing or moths destroy,
What am I going to do?

FRATERNITY GRADUANDS WILL BE GUESTS OF HONOR

Mrs. P. J. Fleming is entertaining at tea at her charming home on 100 avenue on Sunday afternoon in honor of graduating members of the Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity. Among those invited are Miss Gertrude Hord, Miss Marjorie Gibson, Miss Hazel Sutherland, Miss Rose Marie Boileau, Miss Patricia Newson, Miss Jean Irwin and Miss Dorothy Howey.

It wouldn't be possible to love mother more dearly on Mother's Day, for it is too great an emotion ever to be compassed, or to be dated, but the fact that you choose for her a gift and flowers—for it is spring, and Maytime—is just an opportunity of trying to express what you both know and feel so truly. Mother has still her girlish love of receiving flowers to wear, so you can be sure she would love the corsage you send her to wear to church on Sunday.

"To me the meanest flower that blows can bring thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears," the poet Wordsworth, so sensitively responsive to beauty, wrote these lines, and is it not right, then, to dedicate their meaning to Mother on Mother's Day?

Florists have a way of combining flowers with utilitarian gifts that make them doubly acceptable. Illustrated, above, is a white and gold tea set which will delight the mother or grandmother who likes her occasional cup o' tea. The cunning floral decorations of bright-faced daisies and Talisman roses will be remembered and talked about whenever the set is used.

Another clever Mother's Day novelty is the "old spinning wheel," backed by a colorful grouping of roses and valley lilies. A white figurine of a colonial lady sits beside the wheel—the whole is fastened to a polished maple base.

Never forget the beautiful Mother's Day custom of wearing carnations on this day—a white one in memory of the mother departed—a bright one for the mother living.

Milk Is Important In Health, Beauty Diets

By GLADYS GLAD

When the great Napoleon was waging his famous campaigns in Europe, wine sellers with their carts of wine followed the French army everywhere, distributing their beverages amongst the soldiers. In Switzerland today, however, it is the milk sellers who follow the Swiss army. For milk is an important part of every Swiss soldier's rations. And the Swiss troops are considered the most physically fit that are to be found anywhere.

Dieticians say that every person should consume at least a pint of milk every day, because of the protective mineral elements which this beverage contains. Many people are inclined to consider milk just a child's food but it isn't at all. Its consumption is important for adults as well as for children. And for underweight individuals, the consumption of goodly quantities of milk is of especial importance, for it possesses a great deal of nutritive value.

NOT HARD TO DIGEST

Some women assert that they find milk difficult to digest, or that it tends to have a constipating effect on them. Usually, however, this is because they do not know how to drink it properly. In the first place, milk always should be sipped, and not gulped. If it is gulped down, it tends to form hard curds in the stomach and becomes difficult to digest. In the second place do not drink milk when it is extremely cold. For if it is ice cold it tends to chill the stomach, and this also interferes with its digestion. As a matter of fact, it is a good plan to warm milk before drinking it, because milk in this form is much more easily digested. If you cannot sleep after you go to bed, try sipping warm milk.

Some girls insist that they cannot drink milk because they dislike its flavor. But that really is a small matter, for it is simple to disguise the taste of milk and still reap the benefits of its consumption. There are any number of chocolate and differently flavored preparations on the market today that, when combined with milk, give it a delightful taste without interfering with its nutritive qualities. And in Europe, a favorite standby of folk who are underweight is a drink composed of half milk and half ginger ale. The ginger ale is said to help digest the milk, and at the same time, flavors it deliciously.

Rhubarb Is Big Aid When Canning Fruit

By MARY E. DAGUE

Rhubarb is a grand fruit stretcher. This common garden plant with its characteristic tartness has the peculiar property of increasing the bulk of jams and conserves made of delicately flavored fruits without noticeably changing the flavor.

Sister Mary

Strawberry and rhubarb jam is particularly delectable. Almost impossible to distinguish from the all - strawberry variety, yet the rhubarb increases the quantity and decreases the cost.

STRAWBERRY AND RHUBARB JAM

One pound rhubarb, 2 pounds strawberries, 2 pounds granulated sugar. Wash and skin rhubarb. Wash and hull berries. Put rhubarb through the food chopper, catching the juice that drips from the crank case. Combine rhubarb, juice and sugar. Add berries and let stand until sugar is dissolved. Put over a low fire and bring to the boiling point. Stir frequently to prevent sticking and to crush the fruit. Cook until a spoonful tried on a cold plate jellies. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with parafine.

RHUBARB AND PINEAPPLE MARMALADE

Two cups finely chopped rhubarb, 2 cups shredded pineapple, 3 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup water.

Cook pineapple in water for twenty minutes. Add rhubarb and cook until very soft. Add sugar, sifting it in slowly and cook until thick. It will take about twenty minutes. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with parafine.

RHUBARB RELISH

Two pounds rhubarb, ¼ pound seeded and chopped raisins, ½ pound stoned and chopped dates, 3 cups vinegar, 2 pounds light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon chili peppers, 1½ tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ cup English walnuts.

Combine dates and raisins and let stand in vinegar for one hour. Skin rhubarb and cut in half-inch pieces. Add to first mixture with all the remaining ingredients except the nuts. Cook slowly, stirring frequently, for two hours. Add nuts and cook ten minutes longer. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with parafine.

MAY CONSERVE

Two cups finely chopped rhubarb, 2 cups shredded pineapple, 4 cups hulled strawberries, 6 cups sugar, ½ pound blanched and shredded almonds.

Cook pineapple in its own juice for ten minutes. Add strawberries cut in small pieces and prepared rhubarb. Bring to the boiling point and sift in sugar. Cook, stirring to prevent sticking, for about forty minutes. Add nuts and cook ten minutes longer. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with parafine.

It's a good idea to give all jellies and jams two coats of parafine—put on one as soon as the jelly stops steaming and the second when the jelly is cold. This makes a more adequate seal.

A few glasses of these preserves will help replenish the dwindling store left from last autumn's work. Served with tea and toast or hot rolls they will add new interest to plain meals.

Monday's Menu

LUNCHEON: Baked macaroni and cheese, tomato and celery salad, sliced bananas with strawberries, milk, tea.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The old prospector scratched his head and thought a bit, and then he said, "I'll bet I know where Duncy is. I don't think we need fret.

"If I am right, he's safe and sound, and right now bumping 'cross the ground. My guess is, he has done the dumbest thing he's pulled off yet.

"When we were loading all my gold in that small truck, wee Duncy rolled the bags around. He worked inside the truck, you will recall.

"It's my hunch that he grew tired out, and took a little nap, no doubt. To guess that he was locked inside the truck's not hard at all."

* * *

"Then he is riding far away," the Tinies heard fair Dotty say. "How will he ever get back here? That's what I'd like to know.

"He won't remember where we are, and, if he does, it is too far for him to walk. When he wakes up 'twill be an awful blow."

Their old friend then said, "You will see, that if you leave it all to me, the whole thing will turn out all right. Don't worry any more.

* * *

"Oh, my, how thrilling," Goldy cried. "The lad will get a wondrous ride. I hope the truckmen find him ere they get too far away.

"I'd like to see the sleepyhead when he wakes up in his strange bed. Perhaps, now, in the future, wide awake he'll gladly stay."

Now, let's join Duncy once again. His shouting to the two truckmen gave them a big surprise. They brought their small truck to a stop.

Their truck bars then were opened wide and Duncy qnickly jumped outside, and shouted, "That last nap I took turned out to be a flop."

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When I say "Send for the doctor," I have only safety for the children in mind.

"I can't be sending for the doctor every time the children get sick," many mothers protest. Certainly they can't, and needn't. Head colds are as common as days in the week almost, and stomach upsets occur in the best of families. Mothers of today know about the seclusion, rest, diet and so on necessary to bring the sufferer back to normal.

O. R. Barton

Small wounds or cuts—the daily fate of the strenuous child—may also be dealt with at home with reasonable safety, provided the mother is adept at antisepsis and guards against the dangers of neglect.

Indeed, we all know that the parent's sensible judgment, plus experience, plus knowledge of the child's predisposition to certain general ailments must frequently answer in lieu of the physician.

SYMPTOMS OF SERIOUS ILLS

However, it does not hurt to remind ourselves that there must be a limit to the safety zone; that serious and expensive illness can often be minimized by early professional attention; or that a major disease diagnosed in its early stages before it has made dangerous way, loses much of its power.

How, then, is the mother to know when to send for the doctor? A few suggestions may help.

First of all, fever. One cannot tell by feeling head or hands, so a clinical thermometer should be part of the first-aid equipment. Don't be afraid of it. It is easy to read and inexpensive to buy. True, the fever may be merely a grippe, but many serious diseases start out like grippe or a common sore throat.

Second, swelling joints or unaccountable pains, often called "growing pains." Sometimes they are, but the mother cannot tell whether it is "rheumatic fever" or not. Rheumatic fever inflames heart as well as joints, and at least it would be comforting to know, if it is nothing serious.

Loss of weight over a long period of time needs attention, too. Extra feeding often fails. In this case the child needs a lift other than home treatment. The real "fatigue" child, so-called, is the physician's problem.

Difficulty in breathing may be an asthmatic condition. Persistent skin eruptions or eczema, may be due to allergies, or certain foods the child is sensitive to. Hives or headache, if chronic, may be caused by the same things. Such things are usually beyond home guesswork.

Local infections, such as bad tonsils, or adenoids, will undermine health. At any rate, advice should be welcomed.

All severe cuts, burns, scalds, dog-bites, and of course sprains, should have quick and, professional attention.

Ear ache or inflamed eyes, well, they speak for themselves. I should not take a chance on either.

This is hoping that none of these things will happen, and that most of you, dear mothers, will never need a doctor in the house. But a penny saved is a penny earned. And a disease caught early is not only dollars, but perhaps life itself, saved.

DEVONIA LODGE WILL ENTERTAIN GRAND OFFICER

Preparations for the visit of their Dominion Grand President, Mrs. Shawcross of Regina, who will stop in Edmonton en route to the biennial convention at Vancouver in June, were discussed by members of Lodge Devonia, number 57, Daughters of England, at their meeting on Wednesday evening. Miss Jessie Horswell, president of the unit, will represent them at the same conference.

Several members of the Lodge Northern Star, number 90, were guests at the meeting, among them the degree team, who initiated two new members.

Equality of Sexes Is So Much Piffle

Mary Pickford says this is a woman's world. Maybe so for Mary, who has had all the prize packages in life handed to her on a silver salver, but no one can honestly maintain that women as a whole get an equal deal with men. Even in creation woman was an after-thought and didn't arrive until after man had been given the best of everything.

Dorothy Dix

Heaven knows life is a rocky road to travel for both men and women, but it is 10 times steeper, stonier and thornier for women than it is for men. To begin with, Nature makes woman of frailer physique than man. It gives her less strength and more nerves, makes her subject to more ailments and diseases, and then it chucks her out into the world to do the hardest jobs on earth and endure the greatest suffering. Custom comes along and adds a few other handicaps in the way of conventions and clothes, so that there isn't a thing that a woman ever does, from running for congress to going upstairs with a baby in her arms with the feeding bottle in her hand and her skirts held between her teeth, that isn't harder to do just because she is a woman.

Oh, it is a man's world. Consider marriage. It is only men who are able to pick and choose their mates and get what they want, instead of taking what they can get. All the say-so that a woman has about the one she marries is the veto power. A man can go out and at least try to sell himself to any woman he fancies. All that the poor woman can do is to put herself in the attitude to receive the blessing, as old-fashioned Methodists used to say, and keep her fingers crossed for luck on the chance that the man she has her eye on will come her way and happen to notice her.

Oh, it is a man's world. Think of the blessed privilege men have in being able to be even as God made them, while women are under the horrible necessity of being beautiful though ugly, camouflaging the pulchritude they do not possess. When a man goes seeking a job all that the employer is interested in is his ability to do the work. Nobody cares whether he has a classical profile or ox-like eyes. But when girls go looking for work it is the most pulchritudinous who get the jobs. Competent middle-aged Miss Frump hasn't a chance against a nitwit little flapper who hasn't an idea in her head but golden locks outside of it.

Oh, it is a man's world. When a man marries he simply adds the happiness of having a wife and a home and children to his other pleasures and interests in life. He does not have to choose between marriage and his career. He has both. He does not have to sacrifice his ambition. He does not have to give up the work that is just a part of his own soul, the work he has spent years of time and thousands of dollars fitting himself to do, for the sake of having a family. He can combine domesticity and his life work, and each will help him to make a greater success of the other.

But careers and matrimony do not mix for women. So virtually every business and professional woman has to choose between love and her work, or else she makes a failure of both, for the very simple reason that no woman can be an adequate wife and mother while gallivanting around the country lecturing, or singing, or whatnot, instead of keeping her own home fires stoked.

And there women are, and there is nothing you can do about it in a man's world.

DOROTHY DIX.

What To Do

Would you please tell me if it is proper for a young man while playing bridge with friends to remove his coat without asking the permission of the hostess if the room becomes too warm? S. McN.

Answer — Yes, you certainly would be showing a lack of courtesy unless you are very intimate with the family, or unless it was an already established practice in the group of which you are a part. Otherwise, the courteous thing would be to ask permission of the hostess. Her answer to your request will include all the guests and settle the question for everybody.

NAVY IS USING DEADLY SHELL

British United Press

SHEFIFLD, England, May 9.—The latest naval shell which, it is claimed, passes through armour plate 12 inches thick, was described by Sir Robert Hadfield, British metallurgist, at the annual meeting of Hadfields Limited, engineers and steelmakers.

Sir Robert said the latest type of 1-inch shells remained unbroken after being fired at armour inclined at 30 degrees from the vertical. Such shells travelled at a speed of about 1,200 miles per hour. After passing through 12-inch armour plate in 39 ten-thousandths of a second they were recovered unbroken.

One shell of this kind in the region of the magazine could bring about the complete destruction of a battleship, it is claimed.

Sir Robert added supplies of these shells were being rapidly turned out to meet the present urgent demand, and were of the highest quality.

Thousands At Marriage Of Two Monkeys

British United Press

CALCUTTA, May 9.—Elaborate ceremonial, including all the ritual of a Hindu caste wedding, was associated with the marriage at Surah of two monkeys.

The wedding was arranged by a Sadhu (holy priest), who said he had been told in a vision that he was to marry his own pet monkey, Vithal, to a female monkey from one of the sacred temples of Nasik. Each monkey was a year old.

Thousands lined the streets to witness the marriage procession. The "bridegroom," wearing rich apparel and diamond rings, was seated in a gaily decorated automobile with his "bride," gay with silks and ropes of pearls, by his side. After the ceremony the Sadhu entertained hundreds of guests at a banquet.

Shipbuilding Active

LONDON, May 9—Activity in British shipyards is the greatest since 1930, according to Lloyd's, shipbuilding being one of few industries in which Great Britain still leads the world.

RAND GETTING BUILDING BOOM

British United Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, May 9.—A building boom is in progress in the Rand, and the busiest people in the famous mining area are builders, contractors and architects.

An acute shortage of skilled labor has developed, and property owners cannot get repairs done because builders and contractors are busy putting up skyscrapers and modern villas.

The ordinary householder has perforce had to become a handyman.

Although every ship from overseas brings a new contingent of fitters, plumbers, carpenters and other skilled workers, the Rand still suffers from a shortage.

Property owners offer high wages for work to be done, but the builder today is a man of importance, and if he condescends to do an odd job, he tells clients to wait, and waiting means anything from two weeks to a month.

Kangaroo Adopts Baby Wallaby

British United Press

MELBOURNE, May 9.—The first recorded instance of a kangaroo acting as a foster-mother has taken place at the Melbourne zoo.

A motoring party, touring in Gippsland, ran over and killed a large wallaby. In its pouch was a tiny "joey" (baby), and its cries were so pitiful that the tourists decided to try and save its life. They took it to the Melbourne zoo.

The curator decided to try an experiment. Topsy, a black-faced kangaroo, whose "joey" had just left the pouch and started to fend for itself, was chosen. The tiny wallaby was placed in her pouch. She puzzled over it for a quarter of an hour, and then apparently contented at the satisfied squeak of the intruder in her warm pocket, she bounded off, followed by her own puzzled offspring.

The wallaby waif is regularly removed from the pouch and fed with milk from a teaspoon to augment the kangaroo's declining natural supply. Then he is returned to the pouch without any sign of protest from Topsy.

NAVIGATION IS OPEN ON PEACE

PEACE RIVER, May 9.—Navigation on the Peace River opened this week with the sailing of J. J. O'Sullivan's boat and the Hudson's Bay M. S. Weenusk, both bound for Fort Vermilion.

The O'Sullivan boat towed a scow heavily loaded with merchandise and carried the Bourassa brothers, mail couriers, and two lady passengers.

On board the Weenusk were Magistrate Stewart and Sergeant Schulz, also Constable Grayson, accompanied by Mrs. Grayson, who will take charge of the R. C. M. police detachment at Fort Vermilion. Other passengers were Saul Shubin, fur buyer, and Rev. R. Robinson.

All traces of ice have disappeared from the banks of the Peace as the water has taken a sudden rise and is still rising. Farmers are working at top speed on the land. Owing to bad weather, little fall plowing was done and the bulk of early seeding is delayed except on summer fallow.

Effectual Prayer

Illustrated Sunday School Lesson

Scripture—Luke 18:1-23

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

To teach His disciples that "men ought always to pray" and not grow faint in their praying, Jesus told a story of a widow who finally won the help of a cruel and unjust judge by her continual coming with her requests.

To teach humility and sincerity in prayer He told the story of a Pharisee, who in his prayer boasted to God of how good he was, and of a Publican who humbly prayed "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Then some folks brought their babies to Jesus to bless them. The disciples scolded the parents for this, but Jesus called them to him saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for to such belongeth the kingdom of God."

A rich young ruler came to Jesus asking how he might have eternal life. Jesus told him to sell all he had and give to the poor, then come and follow Him. This he was unwilling to do because he loved riches more than his fellowmen.

SALVATION ARMY VISITOR HERE

Commissioner Edgar Hoe, of London, Ontario, will conduct a series of special meetings in the Salvation Army Sunday and Monday. The Commissioner is one of the most widely travelled officers in the Salvation Army, having seen service in various parts of the world. His major appointments have been India, Italy, Kenya, and Tanganyika. He has spent nearly 50 years as an officer in the Army, and has held high commands. His experience has been one of great colour, commencing in London, England over 50 years ago. He suffered much of the hostile opposition which was shown to the Army in the East end of London in those early days. He with the present General of the Salvation Army, General Evangeline Booth, battled against riotous mobs that threatened the life of those who carried the flag of the Salvation Army, as a consequence bodies bruised, broken and bloody was the crowning glory of those who were representatives of the Army with the Commissioner.

From the heart of the British Empire the Commissioner was delegated to important tasks in other parts of the world, and for 25 years he held important appointmentes in India, including jurisdiction over 16 settlements of the criminal tribes of India. This story of work among these unfortunates is moving in the extreme, and the marvellous transformation of these people which cost the British government millions of dollars is one of the marvels of missionary enterprize.

The Commissioner will be heard in the Salvation Army Citadel, 102 street, south of Jasper on Saturday night at 8 p.m. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Sunday evening he will be heard in the Citadel as well as the No. 3 Corps at 95 street and 118 avenue, 7:30 and 8:30 respectively. On Monday evening 8 p.m. he will be giving his famous lecture "Mystery, Moguls and Missions," illustrated with pictures. This is a vivid word and picture portrayal of the People, Castes and the Untouchables. Music will be supplied by United Bands. On Sunday morning Commissioner Hoe will be speaking at the Knox United church.

Sir R. Falconer Will Speak Here

The annual meeting of the Edmonton branch of the League of Nations Society in Canada will be held on Thursday, May 14 at 8 p.m., at the Talmud Torah hall, 10023 103 street. A committee under the chairmanship of Frank Newson will suggest nomination of officers.

At the close of the business session, Sir Robert Falconer, former president of Toronto University and national president of the Society, will address the meeting. Rev. George A. Macdonald, president, of the Edmonton branch, will be in the chair.

REV. A. OSBORN RETURNS SOON

Rev. Andrew R. Osborn, minister of First Presbyterian church, who has been in eastern Canada for the last few weeks, is expected to return here on May 16 and will again occupy the pulpit at First Presbyterian church on Sunday, May 17.

Rev. Herbert Mekeel will preach at both services this Sunday.

His morning subject will be "Mother's Day—A Debt which Cannot be Paid," while in the evening he will speak on "The Future of Christianity."

Sunday school will be held at 12:20 p.m., the Regnal Circle at 3 p.m. and the Young People's gathering at 9 p.m.

The Regnal Circle will be addressed by Rev. R. J. Burton, who will speak on "Kant's Categorical Imperatives in the Light of New Testament Ethics."

Music at the Sunday morning service will include an appropriate solo by Mrs. D. McKechnie, "My Mother White" and an anthem "Be Still My Soul" arranged from themes from Sibelius' tone poem "Finlandia."

REVIVALIST MEET NOW CONCLUDED

Rev. A. F. Miller, the Kentucky revivalist closed his campaign on Sunday night at the Pentecostal Tabernacle. Mr. Miller's sermons on the practical truths of the Bible were enjoyed by hundreds during his four weeks in Edmonton. In his farewell service Sunday night Mr. Miller chose for his subject the experience of Abner in the days of King David. The Tabernacle was well filled for the farewell service, which proved outstanding in the four weeks series. Mr. Miller left on Monday for Lethbridge where he conducts his next revival campaign.

NOTABLE RALLY IS CONCLUDED

A successful rally of mission bands associated with Presbyterian churches of the city was held on Saturday in First Presbyterian church, with well over 100 boys and girls in attendance.

This year, the main speaker was Miss P. B. Lamont, field secretary, who told of the work being carried on in the various Indian school homes in Canada.

A number of interesting items were contributed by the various bands, including a song from Westmount, a play entitled "A Bagful of Wishes" by Rupert Street, a recitation, "Mr. Small," by Calvin Chambers of Strathcona band, and a song and hymn by First Church bands.

Words of welcome were spoken by a member of Central band of First Church, and the rally was arranged and presided over by Mrs. C. Oscroft, Presbyterial Mission Band secretary.

DIVINE MOTHER SERMON THEME

Rev. A. E. Black will preach at both services at Central United church. Following the morning service the church school and study classes will meet.

At the evening service Mr. Black's sermon topic is "The Divine Mother."

Following the evening service the play "Into Thy Kingdom" will be given. This has a very fine subject and a fine setting and was given with a most appreciative reception at the anniversary occasion on Monday evening last.

Anniversary services and supper were in every respect successful last Sunday and Monday, when Rev. R. W. Dalgliesh was guest preacher.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science churches next Sunday, the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Adam and Fallen Man." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3:5). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 409): "The real man is spiritual and immortal, but the mortal and imperfect so-called "children of men" are counterfeits from the beginning, to be laid aside for the pure reality. This mortal is put off, and the new man or real man is put on, in proportion as mortals realize the Science of man and seek the true model."

VISITOR WILL PREACH SUNDAY

Hira Singh, commissioner in Punjab, India, will occupy the pulpit at Knox United church on Sunday morning. This distinguished speaker will have an important and forceful message to deliver to the congregation.

In addition, the services at Knox church will be featured by commemorating Mother's Day in a method far removed from the stereotyped ways of celebrating one of the great days of the year.

The musical setting by the surpliced children's choir and regular choir will lend a dignified solemnity to the whole which will treat of the gentle atmosphere of the home, enriched by Christian brotherhood.

LIBERALS SELECT BY-ELECTION CANDIDATE ON TUESDAY

358 Delegates to Represent 41 City Polling Divisions

She's Candidate

MRS. MARION CONROY

prominently mentioned as a probable Liberal nominee in the Edmonton by-election of June 22, has definitely decided to allow her name to go before the nominating convention at the Masonic Temple on Tuesday next, she stated on Saturday. Mrs. Conroy was the runner-up in the election of Aug. 22 last and has been urged by many of her supporters to stand in the by-election and acceding to their requests, she is letting her name go forward.

By-Election Made Necessary When W. R. Howson, K.C., Elevated to Alberta Supreme Court.

Accompanied by interest that is running literally at "fever heat," no fewer than 358 delegates will assemble at the Masonic Temple on Tuesday evening next to select a Liberal candidate for the Edmonton by-election of June 22. Primaries were held on Tuesday evening at 41 different points throughout the city and delegates were selected to attend the convention.

A by-election was made necessary when W. R. Howson, K.C., Alberta Liberal leader, resigned from the legislature early in March to accept an appointment as judge of the Alberta supreme court.

STRONG CANDIDATE

Liberals are straining every effort to select a strong candidate and fortunately, many are available. Social Credit, Conservatives and other parties have expressed their desire and intention to stay out of the fight and if the Liberals select a strong candidate, there is every reason to believe that an acclamation will be granted, as other parties have no desire to see a contest with the resulting expenditure of thousands of dollars

With this in view the Liberal delegates will direct their efforts to naming a candidate who will be generally acceptable to others and more specially to the Conservatives, who have made a condition of their remaining out of the fight, the selection by the Liberals of a strong man

LATEST PROBABLE ENTRY

Robert Price, well known business man and chief executive of the Price-Dayton company, on Saturday became known as the latest probable candidate

He will go before the convention as an Edmonton businessman, resident here for the past 27 years, and in close touch with the economic situation in Alberta and the general needs of the province

Asked if he would allow his name to go before the convention, Mr. Price said he would.

Among the other leading Liberals whose names are almost certain to be placed before the convention are Mrs. Marion Conroy, Jack Marshall, Dr. Walter Morrish, Charles H. Grant, K.C., J. S. Cowper, A. R. McLennan, Walter S. Campbell, S. C S. Kerr, Edward C. Fisher, Hugh John Macdonald and several others.

Mrs. Conroy, as president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal association, will open the convention.

It is expected that John J. Bowlen, of Calgary, Liberal house leader, will attend the gathering.

Efforts are being made in Greece to develop an automobile spring industry.

3,000 STUDENTS NOW VACCINATED

Nearly 3,000 school children have been vaccinated for smallpox since the vaccination campaign was undertaken a short time ago, Dr. R. B Jenkins, medical health officer, said Saturday. Another 525 treatments were given Friday.

Dr. Jenkins and his assistants will vaccinate at the following schools Monday morning: Strathcona High and Commercial, Queen Alex., Allendale; afternoon: Garneau Public and High, Normal Practice

MAN COMMITS SUICIDE, SIPS POISONED CUP

A. P. Bruder, 50, of Westlock, Dies by Own Hand Here Friday

Drinking nearly a cup of strychnine sulphate, A. P. Bruder, 50 of Westlock, committed suicide in the Capitol Rooms, 10218 101 street, sometime between 2:50 p.m. Thursday and 2:30 p.m. Friday when his body was found by the proprietor of the rooming house, Dave Karvellos. There was no apparent reason for Bruder's act. He left two letters addressed to his wife in Westlock lying on the dresser near the bed where he was found.

Bruder, according to Karvellos, came into the rooming house about 2:30 Thursday afternoon and asked for a room. He registered and 15 minutes after he had been shown his room he returned to the office and asked for a drinking glass or a cup

CUP IS ALRIGHT

"All the drinking glasses had been given to other tenants," said Karvellos, "so I asked him if a cup would be alright and he said it would."

"Not five minutes later he came back to the office and asked me for a pen or pencil, but having none with me at the time I told him that I couldn't give him either a pen or pencil because I had none He wanted to use the register pen but I told him we needed it. He then left and I didn't see him again until I found his body lying on the bed

DOOR WAS LOCKED

Asked what prompted him to enter the room, Karvellos answered: "The chambermaid wanted to go in, but when she tried the door it was locked. She knocked several times and called to Mr. Bruder but received no response. I then went to the door and opening it saw Bruder lying on the bed with his eyes open Going closer I saw that he was dead and immediately phoned the police."

Constables Robert Hughes and B. Arial responded to the call and summoned acting coroner Dr. F. A. Keillor, who examined the body and pronounced that Bruder had been dead several hours.

ACCOUNTANTS IN EDMONTON FETE THEIR PRESIDENT

Alfred B. Shepard, F.C.A., of Toronto, president of the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants, was the guest of the Edmonton Chartered Accountants club on Friday. A golf tournament was held at the Mayfair Golf and Country Club during the afternoon, and in the evening a banquet was given to Mr. Shepard in the Edmonton club. Around fifty chartered accountants and students assembled at the banquet at which Alan Nash, president of the Edmonton Chartered Accountants club was in the chair.

Mr. Shepard, in an interesting address, reviewed the activities of the Dominion Association since the last annual meeting, and referred to the great loss sustained in the untimely death of Harvey E. Guilfoyle, F.C.A., who had been appointed president at the last annual meeting of the Dominion Association but who was taken sick and passed away within a month of his election.

Mr. Shepard also extended an invitation to all Chartered Accountants to attend the annual meeting of the Dominion Association to be held in Toronto during the last week of August.

E. D. C. Thomson, F.C.A., on behalf of the Edmonton Chartered Accountants' Club, thanked Mr. Shepard for his interesting address.

Wives of the Edmonton Chartered Accountants entertained Mrs. Shepard at a tea and bridge at the Mayfair Golf and Country Club during the afternoon, and at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nash in the evening

EDMONTON GIRL TO BE MINISTER

By EVELYN BUXTON

Miss Audrey Black, who is to receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts at the forthcoming Convocation of the University of Alberta, will blaze a new trail into occupational fields for women when she enters St. Stephen's College next year with the view to training for the United Church ministry.

AUDREY BLACK

Miss Black is the daughter of Rev. A. E. Black, minister of Central United church. She has successfully completed her Arts course and plans to register at St. Stephen's college in the fall.

She will not be the first to enter the study of theology at St. Stephen's College, there having been three or four women students taking the course in recent years, but she will be the first to undertake it with a serious view to ordination.

As yet women have not been accepted for ordination by the United Church of Canada, but the question has been discussed several times at general meetings of the Presbyteries. It will come up for discussion again at the General Assembly in Ottawa in August. Prof. Clyo Jackson of St. Stephen's College, states that all Presbyteries in Canada have voted on the question and have been in favor of the ordination of women into the United church ministry

Miss Black says that though she understands women are not yet admitted, she has hopes that they will be by the time she is ready to graduate

She does not plan to do foreign mission work but says she feels there are opportunities and a need for women ministers in Canada.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

A movement is on foot in Edmonton to celebrate Mother's Day by a mass movement for world peace.

"Do you consider this a more fitting way to mark the day than the usual way of sending flowers, candy, telegrams, letters and attending the usual Mother's Day church services, asked the Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter today.

Here is what they say:

DOROTHY SAMIS, student: "I certainly do, but then its always nice to present mother with some kind of a present on the one day set aside in her honor."

• • •

JACK "MAC" McCALLUM, floor manager: "I would certainly be in favor of any such move. Of course most of us would still send presents to our mother on that day."

• • •

"BUD" WILLIAMSON, bookkeeper: "No . . . One wishes to show respect for his mother in a manner suitable to oneself."

• • •

ALEC TRUSSLER, accountant: "Yes, I would be in favor of it but why not do both?"

• • •

HARRY PEARCE, clerk: "By all means. It would make the day stand out like any big holiday and people wouldn't just pass it as an ordinary day. We could still send presents to mother, though."

• • •

BETTY ROWLAND, stenographer: "Why not have such a movement on Armistice Day. In my opinion the day set aside in honor of Mother should be dedicated to her alone."

• • •

BOB CUMMINGS, wrestler: "It would certainly be an excellent way to mark the day but I can see no reason why we shouldn't still send greetings of some kind to mother on that day."

• • •

C. BUMSTEAD, policeman: "Yes, I believe it would be a fitting way to mark the day."

• • •

MARJORIE RUDD, housekeeper: "Why not do both. I can see no reason why we shouldn't continue sending presents."

• • •

MARY RENNIE, clerk: "Sure I think it would be an excellent move. We could easily send presents to mother just the same."

WILD TORRENTS PERIL BULLETIN AS PIPE BURSTS

Flood menace became a stark reality to The Bulletin organization, whose news staff has been meticulously covering every phase of activity of turbulent torrents in the north and spring inundations about the city for weeks past, when a water service pipe burst below the building's foundations early Saturday morning.

The basement, where circulation supplies and transfer files are stored, was soon flooded waist deep and a rush call was sent for city suction pumps, which were quickly manoeuvred into position and cranked into action.

The city's water pump was taking a terrific licking from the rapidly rising water and habitues of Typewriter Row started figuring on the best way to spend a pleasantly workless day.

An SOS was shot through to Fire Chief (Father) Alb. Dutton who dispatched a high pressure suction pump manned by Firemen Tom Brown, Tom Harvey, Ole Bjorge, Bill Airth, Russ Weir, and Cliff Moodie, under command of Deputy Chief Jim Hargroves.

MORE ASSISTANCE

The boys got to work with two pressure lines and flood waters spouted from the Bulletin basement like water over Niagara.

At the moment when the water-pumping smoke-eaters had the situation well in hand Tom "Broadway Breeze" Blackwood came charging down the street with reenforcements — another pumper which he kept primed for action. "Father" himself, with Charlie Keil hove into view, took over operations and completed the flood control job. (P.S.—The paper went to press on time).

City Negro Believes Il Duce Will Become Legree Of Abyssinia

Jason Jones, Once Mississippi Slave, Bemoans Ethiopians' Fate

By BOB PEARSON

He was born in slavery on a Mississippi cotton plantation and now, when the shadows of life's evening are lengthening around him in the democratic freedom of Alberta he fears that Ethiopia will fall into the same condition of slavery that was the sad lot of his own people more than 70 years ago.

Jason Jones

He thinks that Mussolini will be the Simon Legree of Africa.

Born in 1858, Jones recalls the past 78 years. From stories told him by his old grandmother, he retains a store of information of the days before his birth. Ol' Gran'ma's favorite story was of his great grandparents who were "black-birded" from the west coast of Africa

Black-birding was a simple yet

2,000 WORK ON FLYING BOATS

British United Press

LONDON, May 9—The greatest financial year in Britain's history of aviation is just starting. Between now and next April more than $132,500,000 will be spent on aviation alone.

Work, for the right man, is to be had for the asking. There are not enough men to fill the positions vacant. Every pilot with the right licenses has a post, every workman with skilled experience is drawing overtime pay, every designer with ideas is busy at a drawing board.

The largest order for civil aircraft ever placed has been gained for the new Imperial Airways machines—craft that will span the Atlantic, halve times on the Empire air lanes.

More than 2,000 men are at work in the Rochester works of Short Brothers, finishing the first batch of flying boats for this order. Another 3,000 are making the engines for them. Hundreds more are making the land planes for this order at Armstrong-Whitworths. The order amounts to $10,000,000

British Judge First To Reverse His Own Decision

British United Press

SINGAPORE, May 9.—Justice A. Becket Terrell of Singapore, is believed to be the first British judge to reverse in the apepal court a decision he himself made in a lower court.

A few months ago Justice Terrell in the high court granted an order to the Overseas Chinese Bank for the seizure of monies deposited with them. An appeal was lodged, and, sitting in the supreme court as a judge of appeal, Justice Terrell heard the case again.

This time he admitted new facts and set aside his original judgment and ordered the Overseas Chinese Bank to pay damages.

HOUSE MEMBER PASSES NIGHT STUCK IN MUD

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, May 9.—Possibly the experience of A. J. Hooke, Social Credit M. L. A. for this constituency, in spending Saturday night stuck in a mud-hole on the highway six miles east of town, may hasten gravelling of the 14-mile link to the Alhambra corner from Rocky Mountain House. Of the 60 miles between here and Red Deer, 46 miles were gravelled five years ago, but the last 14 miles was not touched.

Coming out from Red Deer with the Sorensen bus on Saturday night, Mr. Hooke and Gordon Sorensen stalled about one a.m. and were forced to spend the rest of the night there, arriving in town for breakfast. Five other cars were stranded in the same mud-hole that night.

While in Edmonton last week Mr. Sorensen had an interview with H. P. Keith, deputy minister of public works, who is quoted by Mr. Sorensen as pointing out the many other long stretches of bad roads in the province as against only a balance of 14 miles on this highway.

Mr. Hooke quotes the minister, Hon. W. A. Fallow, as stating that this link is still well up on the season's program, and is to be done as soon as financial arrangements can be completed

Pine Lake Sets Scale Of Wages

RED DEER, May 9.—The municipal district of Pine Lake has set wages for road work at the same rates as last year: 30c per hour for man, 45c for man and two horses, 60c for man and four horses, 75c for man and six horses, 45c an hour for foreman, and for the 15-30 tractor $1.50 for grading and $2 for maintaining.

Farmers in the municipality will have to take more responsibility for weed control this year as the council has only $200 to be spent on weed inspection. W. J. Reay is again inspector.

ARMY OFFICER LIVES ON SEA

British United Press

LONDON, May 9.—Because he claims he cannot "live" ashore on his pension, Major William Long, retired British army officer, plans to spend the rest of his life on the ocean

He has booked a permanent passage on the P. and O. liner Barrabool, engaged in the London-Australia service. He has just completed his second round voyage on the vessel, and hopes to die on it.

"I understand now how a seaman loves his ship," he declared. "I would not live on land again for any money."

CAMPAIGN TO BEAUTIFY CITY IS ACCLAIMED

Progress of First Week Highly Gratifying to Officials

Edmonton's annual Home and City Beautification campaign has resulted in splendid progress during the past week although the weather has been somewhat inclement. Dingy houses are responding to paint treatment and local gardens are taking on an orderly appearance under the tender ministrations of the citizens.

Through stress of business many home owners will be unable to give personal attention to these necessary seasonal chores but civic officials are quick to point out that there is plenty of relief labor in Edmonton eager to get work

CONTRACTORS EAGER

Building contractors are anxious to capitalize on the present campaign and eagerly anticipate a revival of their industry which has been assailed by the depression unwontedly in the past few years. Economists are busily assuring the nations of the world that general revival will only occur when the building trades have resumed their normal course.

The city engineering and fire departments are co-operating to the limit of their powers in clearing up the accumulation of rubbish in houses and gardens. All rubbish should be burned in back yards or some open spot, but permits must be secured from the fire laddies before citizens ignite any conflagrations that might rival the Chicago fire. (Remember Mrs. O'Leary's cow?)

BUSINESSMEN WILT

Tired businessmen are already wilting under the strain and confess that they would far sooner complete terrific financial deals than attempt to polish floors or clean windows. This spirit, of course, is deplored by those burghers who wish to see this city become a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

The plethora of dusting in local houses has been so terrific that Calgarians, far to the south of us, have been using the long distance telephone attempting to discover if a "twister" is sweeping down out of the northland. University of Alberta statisticians and a few of the brighter members of the graduating class in engineering have been approached with suggestion that they estimate the total amount of dust particles swept into the streets.

It is distressing to report that the professors have frowned on such a "frivolous" suggestion (we quote), and the graduates have decided that such research might interfere with their post-graduate celebrations. It is recognized in all quarters, though, that quite a lot of dust has been swept up by enthusiastic housewives, charladies and housemaids.

The advertisers are ready and willing at all times (advt.) to assist beleaguered householders in any way.

Contract Bridge

HABITUAL BOOSTING IS EXPENSIVE

The term "boosting" means slight overbidding against strong opponents, to force them to bid a trick more than they can make. I question whether such procedure pays in the long run against able players. The booster soon becomes known to both partner and opponents. The former never feels certain whether or not opponents are being pushed up deliberately, to double them, or whether partner is strong enough to want to play what he bids. Opponents who have bid their reasonable limit suddenly drop out of the bidding, doubling the booster's side for a profit. Here is a hand which was dealt last evening in a duplicate game. I sat West and dealt. I will not mention the defenders' names, as both my opponents are very able players, who frequently are my partners in team matches. My partner was J. N. S. Brewster, Jr.

Bidding differs between duplicate and rubber bridge. In the former game a part game score may mean a top. In the rubber game a part game score seldom is of much use in obtaining a game that would not have been won as well had the score been zero. I would have passed had I been in a rubber game. In the duplicate game I made an opening bid of 1-Spade, intending later to show hearts, unless partner supported my longer major suit. That opening call started things. Bidding then went: North, 2-Clubs; East, 3-Hearts, trying to inform me that my spades were like poison to him; South, 5-Clubs, to prevent my safe rebid of spades; West, 5-Hearts, which South doubled. As South was in the habit of tolling opponents into higher calls than they could fulfill, and with so many losers in his own hand, North never dreamed of bidding 6-Clubs, so my partner played 5-Hearts doubled.

It would have made no difference what defense was offered. The hand was just made for a spread at 5-Hearts. All my partner could lose was two tricks—one diamond and one club. My hand could ruff East's second club and his third diamond. Nobody else bid 5-Hearts, which gave us top score East and West. At one table West bid 5-Spades and went down three tricks doubled. At the remaining tables North played a contract of 6-Clubs, and fulfilled his contract, losing only a single diamond trick. No opening lead could have defeated the small slam. Provided West did not make an opening lead of a spade South could have made a small slam at diamonds.

Electric Bell Ringing For 100 Years Keeps On

British United Press

LONDON, May 9.—An electric bell which has been ringing for nearly a hundred years was one of the exhibits of the Oxford University museum staff annual exhibition.

But no one knows if the bell provides an instance of perpetual motion, for although it has not stopped yet it may do so

It was made in 1840, by an unknown inventor, and has since that year been ringing consistently. Its "works" consist of two copper cylinders and five thousand sulphur coated paper discs. The battery charges itself

BRACES KEEP UP FRIENDSHIP

British United Press

DUBBO, N.S.W., May 9.—A shopkeeper here uses a pair of braces every year to keep up something more than a pair of trousers—a friendship.

Fifty-one years ago he opened his shop and his first customer was the county clerk who bought a pair of braces. On every anniversary of the shop's opening another pair of braces was sent to the clerk and, when the shopkeeper died, his son continued the custom

The Tigers Won

CALCUTTA, India, May 9—The Bengal government reports during last year 45 persons were killed by tigers while tigers killed by hunters totalled 40. Leopards killed four people and wild elephants five.

ON the thirty-second anniversary of the only wedding day I ever had there came a telegram dispatched from the Twentieth Century Limited at Buff[illegible]

En route New York [illegible] with me Biltmore eight tonig[illegible]

JIM

It was so very characteristic I had to smile a little. Those few words expressed a great deal of Jim and what our relations have been these many years—his attitude toward me. Not arrogant in the least, but taking me for granted.

It would never occur to him that I might have a previous engagement; that there might even be another man in my life. Subconsciously long ago he built up a theory convenient to his own peace of mind that I've lived in a state of suspended animation ever since we parted.

In a sort of way he is right. Any other engagement would be cancelled to keep one with him, for I only see Jim every five years or so. Once it was longer than that and two wives had elapsed between-whiles. They didn't die. They merely passed out of his life. I was his first and he has never quite managed to lose me. Also, I am the mother of his only child and that probably forms more of a bond than either of us realize. Had his second marriage been successful, had there been other children, this would be a different story.

Anyway, the bond is there and curiously enough the long years of separation have strengthened it instead of the other way about. A puzzling idea, yet a fact. I am fonder of Jim now than I ever was; I love him more, but I don't love him in the way I did when we were married. There was one period, however, when I felt distinctly sour toward him, which isn't at all the same as feeling bitter. Anything, even an emotion that has turned sour, might yield to rational treatment, but bitterness is just plain gall. Thank God I never had anything like that to get out of my system

I was to be in New York for only a few months. My work keeps me on the trot between London and Paris most of the time and Jim lives in Chicago now. I'd taken an apartment on Morningside drive to be near Janie, my married sister. She didn't know what to think when she heard I was going to have dinner with Jim. Hardly anybody knows I keep in touch with him. I used to mention it occasionally, but if you tell people an intimate thing like that they sit up frightfully avid with their ears waggling, suspecting something unusual and perhaps permissibly—but only just permissibly—spicy in the way of romance: "Just like a story, my dear, and probably in the end you'll come together again . . ."

Whoops! It isn't like a story at all. Not one with passionate kisses and a double bed at the finish. The day for that is over where Jim and I are concerned, and if we ever did "come together again"—which is unnecessary even if it isn't improbable—it would be only a way of rounding out a pattern of life, as though fate or whatever it is that shapes our destinies had said: You [illegible] doing your damnedest to forget but, by golly, you're going back to finish it!

Darling Janie is a little conservative. Divorce isn't likely to come into her own life but she accepts it as she would accept any other firmly established American institution. Only, in her opinion, when a person is divorced, there should be an end to association with the other party. And of course I suppose there should be.

It didn't seem quite decent to Janie that I was ideas into her head that everybody gets if they happen going to have dinner with Jim. It put those strange to find out I see him now and again. I suppose his current wife would feel exactly the same way. Janie thought he must be on the verge of one of his divorces, for when that happens he has a touching way of coming to me for sympathy. But of course he isn't getting divorced all the time.

It was snowing hard that morning and an exhausting [illegible] I am not growing [illegible] paralyzing the night [illegible] is held at bay or I'd simply lie down with my paws in [illegible]

I put on the galoshes Janie had said I would need [illegible] York—and how!—raced around getting my hair [illegible] and buying a pair of cultured pearl [illegible], and a spray of orchids and a sweet little clip [illegible] I didn't need and which set me back $50. They [illegible] only a few of the luxuries I'm forever wanting, [illegible] now can't afford, although it seems in an emergency [illegible] can afford pretty well anything.

[illegible], Jim was an emergency; he always is. I think I owe it to myself to stand up as well as I can against the increasingly youthful galaxy of my successors.

There was a dress I had brought from London and only worn once on the boat. It was black tulip velvet with paste buttons and some silver lame on it. Very ladylike and not too matronly, either. The hairdresser got me just the right tint, thank heaven. I was a little anxious about that because my woman in London does it beautifully and you do take a chance with a new one.

No pains had been spared to make a hit, but I knew well enough I wouldn't score any bulls'-eye. Jim never pays compliments; you would say that he hardly looks at me on those few and far between occasions when we are together. He goes out of his way not to look at me, which is a pretty sure indication that he takes everything in. Subconsciously I feel he resents my not having grown terribly and irretrievably old. How on earth could a woman of my age fit into his scheme of life any more? I feel he asks himself that question, but as yet he hasn't the right answer

Janie and Celia came over about the time they knew I'd be dressing. They wanted to see what I was going to wear, how I'd look and everything.

Celia said I ought to put on some lipstick. I think she sleeps with hers under her pillow, but of course she's only seventeen. It adds years to the age I think I look, but I gave it a try to convince her and then promptly got it off again. I declined, however, to let her experiment with my eyebrows. She thought it might result in a striking effect if she plucked them and penciled the outer edges slantwise, a la Merle Oberon. Of course that might have been one way of insuring Jim's attention. I wouldn't have thought of it for myself

Celia was generous, if disappointed. She said: "Well, anyway, Aunt Frances, you certainly do look swell. You ought to fix yourself up like that all the time. Is that liquid powder you use very expensive? He's [illegible], isn't he?"

"He is generally married," I replied. "Yes, it is frightfully expensive, but you may have the bottle if you think it would suit you."

"O, thank you, sweetie-pie! Would his wife like it? I mean your going out to dinner with him?"

"I don't care if she likes it or not, but she won't know."

Celia giggled and Janie looked anxious.

The telephone rang just as I was getting [illegible] new moleskin coat. It was Jim and he wanted to know if I had received his telegram. Did I have a good crossing? From his casual tone it might have been only a few months instead of five years since last we met.

Janie patted me and Celia kissed me. They hoped I would have "a good time." But behind the love in their eyes—particularly Janie's—there was pain. Perhaps I was too gay; perhaps I gave myself away a little. My family, bless them, have mixed emotions [illegible] detect a soft spot in me. My own popular [illegible] of myself is that I'm a good enough scout but [illegible] hard as nails, and I hate to fall down on it.

I was a little short of cash and didn't take a taxi [illegible] I might have borrowed from Janie. It had stopped snowing, but there was plenty of it all over the place and nobody but an idiot would have ventured forth in silver sandals on a January night in New York. I simply couldn't bring myself to the galoshes again. They would have spoiled the picture. It was two blocks to the subway and when I finally got onto a train I was [illegible] than I can ever remember. Whether it [illegible] both, I don't know. [illegible] happened in the underground in London I [illegible] known at once that there was a snow [illegible] sandals and the bare head wouldn't have drawn a single eye—even in January.

[illegible] out of the horrible place I did take a [illegible] at Forty-Second street and a wind [illegible]

• • • •

Always that rapid beating of the heart when I [illegible] Jim [illegible]. It makes my breath come a little fast. I [illegible]

[illegible] owlishly solemn. He behaved [illegible]

He was waiting in the lobby and his [illegible] "I [illegible] jacket suit with me, then you needn't have bothered to dress."

I was glad he forgot to tell me. It would have broken my heart to have stripped all my black tulip and silver lame elegance.

I said it didn't matter anyway, and we [illegible]

He said: "Shall we go downstairs and have some cocktails and a cigarette?"

Once, long ago, Jim jerked a cigarette out of my mouth in front of company, and once he didn't speak to me for two days because I drank some wine at a party and was horribly sick after it. Lord, how we [illegible]! On this occasion he tried to get me to have a third cocktail and he lit my cigarette for me. But, of course, strictly speaking, I'm not his wife any more.

His hair is now quite gray but it's still thick. He looks romantic and I can understand why women fall for him. He is very nearly handsome, but a little thin and reedy. He says he has been seriously ill and in a charming, slightly melancholy way he looks it. Yet he always had that touch of Irish melancholy in his eyes even when he was a boy. It drew the girls in our home town without half trying, but my mother distrusted it. However, she was always hard to please when it came to our beaux.

I think he was quite possibly right about my not being suited to matrimony.

Marriage takes a lot of practice to get used to, and I only had seven years of it. I doubt very much if I could sit nicely now under a man ordering me about and scolding me for running into debt and wanting to save or invest my hard earned money for me. Even Johnny takes it upon himself now and again to caution me for the loose way I handle my affairs, so I can well imagine how it would be with a husband. I couldn't give up my work now, because it is the most vital part of my life as well as providing me with the means to go on living. A really nice, old-fashioned husband—if suitable to my age and tastes he would have to be that—would want me to give up my work and look after him.

I think Jim's persistent matrimonial adventures are partly due to the fact that he is a man who demands a great deal of looking after; perhaps more than any one woman has it in her to give, particularly if she likes a little looking after herself. There is a cold determination about him in that respect. He needs and will have a buffer between himself and the world. He calls it a need for companionship, but he isn't really a good companion because he is secretive and wraps himself in mystery. Nobody knows what Jim is up to—least of all his wife.

It is a sad thing to contemplate a marriage failure that has resulted through sheer youthful ignorance.

Johnny, our son—who is about the same age as Jim's latest wife—[illegible] than Jim, taller and [illegible], and I have [illegible] much wider [illegible]. I [illegible] like to see them together but I don't suppose I ever shall.

Why [illegible] that a woman is always so much prouder [illegible] of her husband? Is it sheer egotism because she had a hand in the making of them? Questions of that sort confuse and irritate me. I want to be fair to Jim, but I can't help feeling that Johnny is an improvement on [illegible] as well as physically.

• • • •

We approach the "do you remember" stuff very cautiously when we get together. We're distinctly afraid of it, yet it [illegible] us. Jim always manages to find occasion to [illegible]. I have come to recognize it as a sort of [illegible]. He brings it out with a droll little smile and [illegible] he has said it before. "You [illegible] think it funny coming from me, but I don't believe [illegible]."

It gives me a [illegible] opening but I never respond with anything clever. I just say "O, well, in [illegible]."

What these circumstances may be I am unable to [illegible]. There probably are plenty of them to make [illegible]. I leave that problem to those who know more about it than I do.

Over the cocktails I said how sweet it was of him to arrange to come east and have dinner with me on our wedding anniversary.

A little too quickly, he assured me he didn't know it was our anniversary, that he never remembered dates, important or otherwise, and his visit east was purely on account of business.

My toes were beginning to thaw so I didn't feel too utterly dampened [illegible] I have trained myself to be too well bred to utter every catty thing that comes into my mouth. It almost burst out, though, that of course he couldn't be expected to remember all of his wedding anniversaries.

He wanted me to say it so he could remind me that I still had my sharp tongue, but I disappointed him.

I don't think it has ever occurred to him that I, myself, might remarry, except on one occasion when out of sheer devilment I touched him up about it. It didn't seem quite fair that he should pursue his primrose path in the fatuous belief that he was my only [illegible] in life. Not that many men have proposed to me since I re-entered the list of the unmarried, but quite a lot might have done so if I had led them on a bit. And there was one I almost accepted. He had some money and a fine old English title and he was a bachelor. I think I was feeling tired or something when I considered the idea, although in my heart of hearts I [illegible] have known I would never go through with it.

What I wanted [illegible] with Jim any more. I [illegible] the man very much and everybody said I ought to have a man to help me bring up Johnny. That of course, was nonsense. I could earn almost as much [illegible] we needed, which is as much as anybody ever [illegible], and I'm not by any means the only woman [illegible] I think as a [illegible] good [illegible] too.

While I was kidding myself that I might become

"The way Jim and I messed up our lives — we ought to have been smacked for it."

[illegible] Jim said he [illegible] I was [illegible]

When I was his wife I resented that attitude. It made me feel I was living with an enigma. Now that I am more experienced, I can understand better and that is why I love him more now and my tongue is considerably softer. Introspective people need such a lot of love and understanding, and it is a sad thing to contemplate a failure that has resulted through sheer, youthful ignorance. Probably most marriages that end in the divorce court are confessions of failure through nothing but ignorance. Though, of course, a deplorable amount of egotism enters into it, too.

But nobody can teach the young. They know everything there ever was to know. Their appalling conceit would be team making if it weren't so smug and self-sufficient.

The way Jim and I behaved and messed up our lives was enough to make the angels weep. We ought to have been jolly well smacked for it. And in effect, we have been.

At this point my pen dallies with the intriguing idea of setting down what part I consider my own shortcomings to have played in our debacle. But, no—I should only pick out those with qualities of gamin charm and skip the downright nasty ones

After the cocktails we went up to a restaurant where people were dancing, and had our dinner. It was all in the gloom of that continental lighting which I abominate. I don't like to eat in the dark. But I wasn't very hungry and Jim was on a diet

He didn't want to talk very much about Johnny—whom he hasn't seen for donkey's years—and still less about Johnny's two small daughters. He positively winced when I dragged them in. I don't altogether blame him. It's taken me a little time, myself, to get used to being a grandmother, and I haven't got a "life partner" half my own age to live up to. And I think, poor darling, the thought of Johnny hurts him. Those two have rather neglected each other. It's a pity.

Jim's own health was a burning topic, however, and a safe one, so we stuck to it for a while. I shouldn't be surprised if he made this last wife an honest-to-God widow. A famous surgeon was once moved to tell me as a sort of grim joke on his own sex that, contrary to general opinion, men hate the thought of growing old far more than women do. He said that the fear of losing their sexual power simply drives them nuts. I was reminded of one of Sophy Tucker's sallies—that "men only care for two things in life, and food is one of them." It's a limited outlook, really, but perhaps it doesn't apply to all men. In fact, I'm sure it doesn't

The doctors have got Jim tied up so he can't take much interest in food. Naturally, I speculate a little about his love life. It is so varied and continuous. Will it kill him ultimately? He's only fifty-seven and surely oughtn't to be sickening for the grave as he seems to think he is. But an outmoded wife might easily be misunderstood if she offered good advice on certain subjects. That, I think—apart from purely ethical reasons—is the main danger for people who get the habit of divorce and remarriage. Physically it must be bad for them: one of nature's subtle revenges. If Jim and I had stuck it out together, by this time sex would be playing but the smallest part in our lives. Probably reduced to the vanishing point. But we would have had plenty of other interests to make up for it.

Even one matrimonial experience does something to a man that the sex as a whole hardly intended to happen. They get caught, poor things, just when the glorious ideal of freedom and worlds to conquer is racing in their blood at its very strongest. And that, of course, is one of nature's not-so-subtle humiliations.

Jim was caught young, but certainly he asked for it ever since. I can remember when he had been married five years and Johnny was three and the other little baby a few months in his grave. I lay awake a lot at night worrying about the inconclusive threats that seemed to hang over me

Jim didn't actually put it into words, but he was chafing under bondage. There were so many things, it seemed, he wanted to do, so many places he wanted to go, and here he was prematurely tied hand and foot with family responsibilities. He had married far too young, which was what everybody else had said at the time of both of us.

Johnny married young, too, but he is entirely a one-woman man and always will be, thank God, and his aims and ideals are pedagogic rather than Homeric. But that is another story.

As I said a moment ago, even one marriage is almost too much for any man.

But what, I ask you, did Jim do with his freedom when he got it?

Did he use it to conquer even one very little world?

No, he just stuck his head in the same old noose again, and strangely enough it was I who went places and to some extent did things.

He was only thirty-six when he married No. 3 and he wrote me a little apologetically that she was "a girl of twenty-five." He hoped it wasn't a mistake marrying any one so much younger than himself. He was fifty-two when he married this last one and she was only twenty-five, too, but he didn't seem to think anything at all of the difference in their ages.

There must be many times in such circumstances when one gets sick to death of the marital bed. I can imagine nothing more bone wearying than the constant resimulation of middle age passion however one prides himself upon his virility. And Jim was never excessively virile even in his youth. He isn't the type.

I have seen photographs of the lot and No. 2 was the best looking, although she turned out to be Jim's worst mistake. No. 4 dresses well and is good looking. [illegible] had some snapshots of her which he showed me.

Of course we talked hard and fast all the time, or, anyway, I did. Silence is always dangerous for us. We discussed the American depression and European politics and old friends and relatives in the town up the [illegible] we first met in our schooldays, but we were careful not to get sentimental. That happened once [illegible] after this third marriage which looked like being successful, and suddenly we found ourselves weeping on each other's shoulder. O, a truly dreadful moment! A possible repetition of it is a horror that hangs over both of us, so we merely skirt the sentimental hazards now. Yet we do approach them. That's the devilish trouble. It seems impossible to keep away entirely. It's like walking on stones covered with slippery wet moss.

"I saw the hospital from the train—" he said. "You know, the one at H—— where Johnny was born. Gosh, that was an awful night. Makes me sweat even now to think of it."

"I never knew it was as bad as all that," I said. "I didn't mind it so much. What I remember most was waking up and hearing a nurse say, 'Well, that's Mr C——'s son all right.' Johnny looked more like you when he was a little fellow than he does now."

Then we talked of money and what a lot of it is needed nowadays. But even that ordinary topic of conversation threatened to slip us up.

"I only had $10 a week to keep house on when we lived in Ridgewood," I said, unwisely. "Yet I seemed to manage. And it was a lot of fun, really."

"Gosh, I don't know how you did it!"

That was almost a compliment; as near as Jim ever gets. I was thrilled and I'm sure turned quite pink under the film of that becoming shade of liquid powder Celia had admired. When Jim says something like that it's lovely because it's so rare. Which only proves that no man should be lavish with his praise. Is that the secret of Jim's success with women?

It certainly wasn't easy with a baby and all, even in those days, but somehow I did do it and we didn't run up any bills, either. We'd have been in the soup pretty quick if we had.

So you see, there are so many things we want to talk about but only slither around in a casual way. We bumped off abruptly after my blush. What's happened to each of us since we separated is nobody's business, although Jim likes to think that nothing at all has happened to me, but we are both immensely interested in our youth and, of course, we share those very vital memories. There were the nutting and river picnics, the skating parties and the dances at the military academies, and the high school debating society. No end of things like that filling the years between fifteen and twenty. And how very important those years are. Why, when I was only fifteen authority had to step in and do what I could to keep Jim and me from making a scandal of ourselves. Nowadays I don't suppose parents and guardians would be allowed to be such nuisances.

When we meet now we don't talk very much about when we took the bit in our teeth and made them let us get married. We don't talk about our married life or argue as to whose fault it was we separated. Once Jim did say—and I thought it noble of him—"There were faults on both sides."

We never use the word "happy" when we inquire into the state of each other's welfare. We just say, "I hope you've been keeping fine and have your share of good luck." Indeed, we play the game quite skilfully and hardly ever break a rule. That one time scared us and not for years have we broken one. But, O, how near we came to it sometimes.

He took me back to Morningside in a taxi and I can't, now, for the life of me think why it should seem such an opulent gesture, except that at the moment I was slightly broke and dwelling in what by force of circumstances has become almost a foreign country. And in actual cash that little party of ours had cost me about twenty times what it cost Jim.

I am quite accustomed to hailing taxis in the ordinary way and getting myself taken wherever I want to go. Only I don't connect them with Jim. There weren't very many knocking about in our young days and we would have been too frightened of the expense, anyway.

This was a lovely new taxi and we drove through the park. The night was beautiful; moonlit after the snow clouds. We didn't hold hands or anything like that. We would have been afraid of starting something that we wouldn't know how to stop. It's too devastating to be swamped in sentiment and if I cry nowadays I get a raging headache, so I keep off tears as much as possible.

He came up to my apartment and we had a whisky-and-soda and smoked hard and talked a lot more, mostly about our friends and families. It was after two before he left. I went out to the elevator with him and waited until it came up before I kissed him good-by.

When I went back I stood for a long time at the window looking out over New York. It was a fascinating, fairylike sight with the lighted towers and the snow.

I wonder if you have to be a returned exile fully to appreciate and love the sharp beauty of this unique city."

For such a one, who soon must leave it once more, there quickens a fierce desire and a longing that has no name.

I wouldn't see Jim again this time. Would I ever see him again? That, of course, was always the question after each of our partings.

Would there ever be a next time?

And then I remembered that life and eternity are of God and one with God.

Of course there will be a next time; of course I will see him again, and we'll have such a lot to talk about, too, without any silly reservations, speaking everything quite openly that's in both of our hearts

• • • •

I was reminded of something—heaven knows how or why—that tweaked me back to this world, having nothing to do with earthly partings and the forecasting of celestial events to follow.

It was like a little light shining in a gloom that was becoming too mysterious for comfort.

Once in a village in Algeria I saw an old Arab trudging along a dusty road with an equally old wife. She had reached an age, poor thing, when it was no longer necessary to cover her face, although she did just hitch a corner of her burnoose over it. The native guide laughed and made a rude remark. It seemed that the woman was the old man's first wife, and recently he had sent the other three back to their relatives as he didn't feel he needed them any more

I said, "I don't suppose that sort of thing happens very often."

"It happens all the time, madame," said the guide. "When a man is old he wants peace. The young ones tire him."

I don't think I would have Jim back at that price even if it did mean peace for one or both of us. I don't really want him back at all any more than he wants me. It might be different if, like the Arab and his wives, we'd all been living under the same roof, but western customs being what they are we have traveled too far even to try that experiment all over again. Because this time we would at least know that it was only an experiment.

Yes, like Jim, I don't believe in divorce. Not for thinking people, anyway. People who possess the gift of using their gray matter had better put up with almost anything before they start that racket. It leads hem exactly nowhere, which wouldn't be so much of a pity if they had no intelligence—I am speaking of thinking people—it just about burns them up.

Jim and I can't be unique. There must be many, many divorced couples who sneak away sometimes to renew that feeling and interest for each other which simply seems unable to die and get itself decently buried. If I were married to a man who had a previous wife running footloose around the world I'd be uneasy. For although, as I said, I don't suppose I really want Jim back any more than he wants me, there's a peculiar compulsion about those marriage vows of long ago. He is the only man who could ever matter the least little bit. I haven't told him so, and he hasn't told me how he feels, but there are some things one doesn't need to put into words

If Jim's last wife is really fond of him then it's as well for her peace of mind that my home is on the other side of the Atlantic. Otherwise I might be tempted to put a stop to all that silly philandering.

It would be so easy to take him by the ear and say, "Come along now, I've stood all from you that I'm going to."

Because in my heart of hearts I know—and so does Jim—that wives may come and wives may go, but he's just as much my husband as ever he was.

FOLLY and FAREWELL

By Marie Blizard

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PETER GARDINER, newspaper reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with DIX CARTER, but he goes abroad to study singing. When Peter asks Linda to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.

HONEY HARMON, film star, comes to Newtown, making a "personal appearance" tour. She buys a scenario written by Linda. Later Linda goes to Hollywood and, by expressing ideas that are really Peter's, acquires a reputation for being able to discover new stars. Soon she is a celebrity

Dix Carter comes to Hollywood to get into films as an actor. Linda tries to help him. To please Dix, she invites BASIL THORNE, director, to her home, although she dislikes and distrusts Thorne.

Peter Gardiner writes a successful play and later comes to Hollywood. Linda spends an afternoon with him. He tells her Dix is using her as a stepping stone to success and Linda becomes furiously angry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

THE things Linda couldn't think of to say to Pete Gardiner she remembered when she was dressing for Dix that night. Brushing her hair with swift, angry strokes, she finished Pete forever and found her eyes sparkling and her cheeks flushed. Dressed in scarlet satin pajamas, she marched up and down the small area of her living room, darting quick glances at the clock until she laughed in pure amusement. She had been going to vent her anger on Dix!

Dix had always the power to change her mood. She couldn't be sad or angry when she was with him. She couldn't be independent or herself. It was disquieting to think she couldn't be herself, that she was always playing being gay, happy, helpful. Thinking again of Pete's words, her anger rose in Dix's defense. It wasn't because Dix was weak. It was only that Dix was someone to live up to. She felt the strain of the situation—strain that is almost unavoidable when courtship is delicately balanced on the wires of two careers.

Courtship was an old-fashioned idea, Linda thought, and wondered what new word there was for it. Courtship was a lovely word for never-to-be-repeated days before marriage. Pete had given her a sort of courtship, but she hadn't loved Pete, and it took the tender contemplation of love to make it precious.

Waiting for Dix, Linda found herself thinking of marriage. That she was going to marry Dix she did not doubt. He had once asked her to wait for him. Waiting for what? Then he had come back and told her that he loved her. When a man loved a woman he wanted to marry her, didn't he?

Linda wondered, and suddenly she had to know. She could not go on for years waiting for the knowing that the day would come when she would begin to dread losing him, the day when she would hear that he had been out with another girl and she would lose her head and give her heart over to torture. Linda had never experienced that feeling, but she was woman enough to anticipate it with all its devastating pain. When that day came, she would go away and never see him again.

"What's the matter with my little girl?" he asked, folding her in his arms.

• • •

Linda didn't try to be gay. Her eyes searched his face, expecting to find she knew not what. It was the same face with the same laughing eyes, the same easy smile, the same impatient eyebrows.

She laughed nervously. "I'm tired, darling, and in a talkative mood. I want to play Questions and Answers. Would you like to?"

"Anything you want to do is always all right with me," he answered, dropping to the sofa.

She lit a cigarette for him. "You shouldn't smoke. Think of your voice! And is there anything new about the voice?"

"Yes. I dropped in to see Thorne today. Thought I might have some trouble getting in, but he remembered my name and asked me in. Nice fellow. He's going to make a sequence of his last picture over, and he might give me a chance to do two songs."

"But that's wonderful! Dix, darling, when he sees the rushes you'll be made and I——" Linda didn't finish her sentence; she was about to say that her work would be done. She sighed with sheer relief. The last day that she had to see Thorne could not come too soon. She was afraid of him. Afraid that he would make an overt gesture, and she would not know how to handle him.

• • •

Linda was glad that he asked that. It made it easier for her to begin. Nonetheless, she wondered if her voice was as bright and gay as she meant it to be.

"I'll ask the questions, and you supply the answers. Do you love me?"

"Certainly. Next?"

"Do you think you always will?"

Dix laughed. "Don't you read the movie titles, woman? Don't you know that no one knows the answer to how long he will love?"

"Linda, you sound like a character out of a children's book. Am I supposed to spread my hands 'so high' [illegible] kneel, seize your hand in mine and lay my heart and hand at your feet?"

He had given her the opening she had been hoping for. "Something like that," she said, and added quickly, "Only that isn't done any more, is it? Except that people still do get married. They just say, 'Let's fly to Yuma and get married.' It's not as romantic, but quite as effective."

Dix didn't say anything. Linda knew he must feel her heart skipping beats. She wished fervently that she had said nothing. Now Dix would think that she was pursuing him, and Heaven help the girl so unwise as to force a man to declare himself!

Dix swung his legs to the floor, smoothed his rumpled hair. Anxiously she watched his frown give way to a smile.

"You wouldn't marry me, would you?"

"Come, come, darling, you're much too smart. You're a successful woman, and I'm a starving actor. I couldn't support you in the manner to which you're accustomed."

Linda was horribly embarrassed. "Skip it, Dix. I wasn't forcing you into a declaration of any kind. We'll both forget it."

"No, you weren't forcing me into a declaration, as you call it." The straight brows had drawn together again. "But there is something on your mind."

"Please forget it," she begged. "There is something on my mind, but it's pictures and not matrimony."

Dix did not dismiss the subject. "I always thought we'd get married. Not right now"—Linda's whole being sang "right now"—"but you have a date to run down to Yuma with me and take me for better or worse the minute I get a job."

"Sold," she answered, and closed her eyes.

Dix wanted to marry her! Days were like hours after that. She was jealous of her sleeping hours that separated her consciousness made beautiful by her dreams. Weeks went by on the proverbial wings of the song she lived by.

Romance was rampant in Hollywood, and it was as much as Linda could do to keep her secret to herself. She wanted to tell the world that she was Dix Carter's chosen bride. Instead she listened and lived for the moment when she might make her proud pronouncement.

"I suppose you've heard Honey Harmon and Pete Gardiner are romancing all over the lot?" Cora Jarrell asked her.

"No, I hadn't." That was all Linda said, but secretly she wished that Pete had rated a girl . . . well not quite Honey's type [illegible]

Today's Markets

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, May 9—Junior golds continued to splash around in the Toronto mining market today, adding substantial gains on heavy volume here and there while senior golds were slow but firm and other groups mainly unchanged

O'Brien was a feature, moving up to 1.08 for a net gain of 12 cents. Paymaster advanced 9 cents to 1:09 B.

Half point gains were posted for Dome and McIntyre. Pickle Crow lost 15 cents and Hard Rock gained a few cents.

Active penny stocks included Manitoba-Eastern, Greene Stabell, and Central Manitoba, all selling higher.

Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, May 9—Industrial share prices stiffened slightly in volume on the Toronto market. Minimum gains appeared for Nickel, Smelters and some of the oils, including British American Oil and International Petroleum

Dominion Bridge was an outstanding strong spot in the Steels, advancing 1¾ to 37¾, and Dominion Steel was slightly higher. Canada Bread and Loblaw A were about the only gainers in the foods.

Implement shares held steady. The market for C.P.R. was firm and quiet and Ford A lost ½.

At Montreal

Nickel moved up ¾ to 43¾, while Smelters finished about even. Noranda added ⅝. C.P.R. gained ⅛ and National Breweries and Distillers-Seagrams were steady to a bit firmer.

At New York

NEW YORK, May 9.—Despite the cloudy foreign outlook, buying support got behind the stock market today and pushed up leading issues fractions to 2 or more points.

Although there was some last-minute profit taking, the close was firm. The upturn was accomplished in the dullest session since last June. Transfers were around 350,000 shares

BROOMHALL

CHICAGO, May 9—World shipments of wheat and flour excluding North America total 3,560,000 this week, compared with 3,604,000 from the same countries a week ago. It is expected fairly good quantities will clear through Canadian Atlantic ports and the total from all countries will probably be around 9,000,000. Australian shippers offers were somewhat easier yesterday, due to the further decline in Canadian prices, but the spread has widened further and with the present differentials there is little likelihood of important business being worked in nearby positions. Australian shipment is held at 4⅝ over Manitoba Atlantic and 3½ over Vancouver 2's, c.i.f. the U.K.

Dry weather continued over most of Australia during the past week and [illegible] important sections. Subsoil moisture is good, however, and growers have been awaiting surface moisture before proceeding with seeding. It is expected that the acreage to wheat will be about the same or perhaps slightly larger than last year when the area planted was the smallest for many years.

BRISK DEMAND RAISES WHEAT

WINNIPEG, May 9—Brisk overseas demand for wheat more than offset today the bearish effect on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange of further heavy rains southwest. Values closed 1¼-1⅛ cents higher. May at 77¾, July 78⅝-½ and October 79⅝-¾ cents

Off a half-cent at the start, prices stiffened quickly as export sales estimated at 1,000,000 bushels were reported. The sales more than offset bearish reports of continued torrential rains in the United States winter-wheat growing area

Precipitation, however, led to recessions at Chicago. The decline in that market had but a fleeting influence on Winnipeg futures. Liverpool was easy, off ¼-⅜d at the close, due to the pressure of Canadian wheat on the market

The late strength in wheat was mirrored in the cash and coarse grains markets, where fractional advances were scored

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, May 9—Report from Edmonton stockyards for week ending May 9—

Receipts—	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Week	1545	180	961	7
Saturday	99	5	88	..

The quality of the offerings during this past week has not been of a high order. As a result trading at times was inclined to be slow as there was very little demand for thin, common kinds of cattle. Any offerings of good kinds of butchers were quite readily cleaned up and sales throughout the week indicated that prices generally remain about steady and unchanged with last week's close, except fed calves which are showing a lower tendency. The following are the prices quoted:

Good to choice fed calves $4.25 to $4.75; others from $4.00 down; good to choice steers from $4.25 to $4.75; especially choice kinds quoted up to $5.00; mediums $3.50 to $4.00; and common to fair from $2.50 to $3.25; good to choice heifers $3.00 to $3.75; common to medium $2.00 to $3.00. Good to choice cows $2.50 to $3.00; mediums $2.00 to $2.25; and common to fair from $1.50 to $2.00; canners and cutters $1.25 to $1.50; bulls $2.00 to $2.50.

Good kinds of stockers and feeders are finding a fairly ready outlet at from $3 to $3.50, other kinds from $2.50 down

In mid-week the calf market was sharply lower, but at the close of the week a better tone developed when good to choice calves sold at $5 to $5.50, mediums $4 to $4.50 and common to fair from $2.50 to $3.50.

At the close of the week the hog market was unsettled. On Friday up to noon a few trucked-in bacons sold up to $8, to fill out loads with some remaining unsold. Selects bringing 50c per cwt. premium and butchers discounted 50c per cwt

Insufficient sheep arrivals to make or establish a market, with quality of the fed on offer not of the best. Prices quoted steady with good to choice lambs $8 to $8.50, other kinds from $7.50 down, yearlings $4.50 down and ewes $3.50 down

RIMBEY, May 9.—An election will be held in the Park Springs school house in division four of the municipal district of Blindman providing more than one nomination is received on Saturday, May 16, according to a decision rendered by His Honor Judge Bury at Wetaskiwin on April 28. This action is consequent upon the setting aside of the election of J. C. Henderson who won over Alexander McKenzie with a vote of 43-42. The court action was taken when it was alleged that ballots had been cast at the February polls by persons not eligible to vote. A. McKenzie was the relator.

SENIORS READY

A. R. Lawrence Asking Girls Be Given Sunday Dates

No definite dates, owing to the uncertainty of the junior baseball league, represented by David Little and John Dacey, were allocated at Boyle Street grounds in a meeting of league officials last night.

The meeting was called by city grounds supervisor, C. M. Small, at the Civic block, but no official arrangements were made for the 1936 season.

Mr. Little did not indicate that he had any actual teams in formation but early in the evening [illegible] to expect to know later in the meeting as to his league. Later he asked Clayton McLennan whether he was going to play with the junior league or go with the new league and with McLennan's refusal to be pinned down to a decision last evening, caused a situation that will necessitate another meeting possibly next week and postponement of the hoped for early start on playing activities.

The new senior league reported themselves as ready to go ahead but asked to be alloted Sundays as the juniors had had a season-and-a-half of this favored day while the old Big Four as brought into the question had had only half a season.

Then A. R. Lawrence boomed into the discussion asking that the rights of any of the girls league who had paid their share of the grounds debt to date, and had never had a Sunday, should be given Sundays for 1936 and if this could not be followed out then the girls league should at least have the right to designate who should have those rights. This request apparently met with little consideration as the following debate rested almost entirely on what the men and boys should have with no decision.

Bert Tonsi presented a request from the city girls softball league and James Miller and Bill Bullock asked that the Community softball league of girl players should be given any vacancy.

Finally the meeting adjourned with Mr. Small's request that the two male leagues hold a conference during the interim.

Smythe Story on Goalies Told at Hockey Meeting

Earl Robertson Involved in Tale of Purchase of Goalie Star

DETROIT, May 9.—The story of how Conny Smythe went shopping for a goaltender, was disappointed in one and bought another was told today as the Toronto Maple Leaf manager handed Detroit Olympics $8.000 for Walter Broada.

The young Olympics goalie, playing his first year as a professional, made a hit with Smythe one night when the Toronto man came here to watch Earl Robertson, of Windsor Bulldogs. Robertson let eight pucks past him that night and Smythe's attention wandered to the United States Broada.

Smythe called off a $6,500 offer for Robertson and at the National Hockey League annual meeting here Thursday agreed to pay 08 000, a new high for a minor leaguer, to Olympics for Broada.

Olympics immediately announced they would fill Broada's job with Jimmy Franks, a 22-year-old amateur who played in Prince Albert last season and was recommended to Olympics by "Goldie" Smith, Red Wing scout. Franks averaged 37 stops a game in seven Allan Cup playoffs last season.

In executive session, the N.H.L. heads re-elected Frank Calder to his 20th term as president and appointed Calder, Smythe and Art Ross of Boston to confer with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association on "conditions that have arisen in the amateur situation."

JIM M'LARNIN TO QUIT RING SAYS FOSTER

NEW YORK, May 9.—Jimmy McLarnin, after the beating he took last night from Tony Canzoneri, conceded he "ought to quit" but he wasn't as convincing about it as his veteran manager, Pop Foster. Both have said the same thing before.

Foster added vehemently: "I will insist Jimmy quit the ring. He should never have taken this fight. I was against it."

Canzoneri paid tribute to the Vancouver Celt as the "toughest and best man" he ever beat.

"He caught me coming in with a terrific left hook in the first round," said the lightweight champion. "For a few seconds I didn't think I could stand up under such a vicious shower of blows. When I was able to walk to my corner unaided, however, I figured I could win."

Canzoneri said he had been hit harder but never so suddenly. Ray Miller hit him a harder wallop, he said.

British Consols Beat Trudeaus 8-4

Another softball team fell prey to the crack British Consol nine on Thursday night when the Consols defeated Trudeaus by the score of 8-4.

The game was of the closest variety for the two teams entered the final inning tied 3-3. In this inning the Consols finally began to click and pushed over five runs to a lone tally by Trudeaus.

Craig and Wiley shared pitching honors for the Consols with Sellars and Guild doing the chucking for Trudeaus.

Eku Pulls Phoney On Spendlove and Hager Wins Final

By JOFFRE DECHENE

These five stocky grapplers, good men and true, accounted for more action than fans, including your reporter, could follow. One just had to make up his mind that he was going to miss some, there was so much of it, all at the same time, in every corner of the ring.

FINALISTS GIVE FINE EXHIBITION

The two who outlasted all the rest and were left in the ring to battle through three falls for final victory, Tex Hager and Mickey McGuire, gave patrons one of the fastest and most gripping exhibitions ever witnessed in Edmonton. It had all the speed and much of the science of the well remembered bout between Hugh "Whiskers" Adams, who comes back here next Friday, and Otis Clingman.

It was the second time local fans were given a chance to witness the "wrestle royal" and it was every bit as good, as fast and as interesting as the first one.

The five wrestlers have stepped into the ring and they are all pensively leaning on the ropes in their respective corners. A few parting admonitions by the referee, a short examination of their finger nails, the bell goes and the fight is on!

CALM BEFORE STORM

For a few seconds nothing happens; they all stand poised, in fighting posture, ready to strike, but wondering just who they will start by or who will start on them. It's every man for himself.

Finally Mickey McGuire and Jack Eku tangle; Billy Spendlove plunges into Bob Cummings. Hager has no opponent for the present. But no, McGuire has thrown Eku out of the ring and now he goes for Tex. In the meantime Spendlove has thrown Cummings out and Eku is back in the ring.

Then takes place the pact that was to bring about high treason a few moments later. Eku and Spendlove are conversing instead of fighting; they are evidently agreeing to stand against the rest, but Bob is back and again the fight rages furious.

BOB FIRST VICTIM

Cummings, certainly not the least dangerous of them, is the first victim of a gang attack. He has just finished saving Hager and McGuire from the hands of Spendlove and Eku, when the latter lets him have a terrific blow to the face. Bob staggers a bit, fights back, but Eku hits him again, knocks him down and they all pile on him. Number one victim. He is carried out.

The four other wrestlers have started up again. It is now clearly a case of Spendlove-Eku against Hager-McGuire. But treason has entered the mind of one of the grapplers. Hager and Eku are paired in one corner, Spendlove and McGuire in the other. McGuire is absorbing terrific punishment, while Hager has just been thrown out of the ring.

Spendlove has Mickey on his back and is all ready to pin him down, he is waiting for Eku to come back and help him polish off the job. Instead Eku calmly walks up to his would-be wrestling partner and smacks him on the jaw, and, before the bewildered Spendlove can recover, they've all jumped on him and he is pinned to the mat.

That was a dirty trick and Spendlove is in a fury, he wants to get at Eku and make him pay for his turn-coat trick. It took three men to hold him and three of them to take him out of the ring.

With only Eku, McGuire and Spendlove left, it's clearly a case of two against one. McGuire grabs the Eskimo by the hair and holds his head in place while Hager socks him. Three or four hefty cuffs and the wrestle royal is over. Mickey McGuire and Tex Hager are the finalists. The fun had lasted a trifle more than 15 minutes.

Then came the bout that will long be remembered for its speed and its clean scientific wrestling. The pair was well matched and they spared no effort to make the show the real McCoy.

GETS FIRST FALL

The first fall went to Mickey McGuire and he really deserved it as he had an advantage in holds during that first heat. However the margin was very slim and Hager scored heavily on several occasions by getting out of some tough holds in handsome manner. He got quite a rise from the fans when he broke an armlock by jumping up on the ropes, while McGuire did his share of fancy hold-breaking by forcing his way out of the dread Indian deathlock.

McGuire earned the fall in 18 minutes with a series of slams, an Irish whip followed by an armbreaker.

From the start of the second heat it seemed as if McGuire was headed for two straight falls as he had Hager groggy with a series of body slams, but little Tex rallied beautifully with a series of head butts.

Hager got the fall in 16 minutes as he went to town with a series of drop kicks, flying tackles off the ropes and body slams polished off with a body press.

In the third fall a comical situation arose when the legs of both wrestlers got tangled up in such a maze that they were unable to extricate them themselves. By mutual consent they agreed to suspend further fighting till referee DeBleik untied their legs. It was the best example of the proverbial matrimonial knot anyone could hope for. Both of them suffered terrible pain as the ref. toiled to restore each leg to his rightful owner and he had to go as far as to take off Hager's shoes before he could get them untangled.

Hager got the fall by slamming McGuire off the ropes, throwing in a few Irish whips, and then bouncing him on the ropes he caught him on the fly, gave him the airplane spin and the bout was over.

In the opening bout of the card, Alex Boytzun of Leduc and Steve Babiak of Thorsby tangled in a two out of three falls bout. Boytzun won, getting the first and last falls with a scissors hold and a body press respectively.

SPORT ROUNDUP

NEW YORK, May 9.—This is a secret that just can't be kept: Mike Jacobs will be in the Hippodrome next winter and you can look for an announcement any minute. He'll stage boxing, tennis, track meets and even a bit of wrestling . . Mike is going to the Berlin Olympics in disguise to try to talk the world's ace runners, jumpers, etc., into turning pro. . . . Sammy Goldman didn't want to match Canzoneri against McLarnin . . but Tony insisted, so there you are.

You remember the 1932 world series, when Babe Ruth hung up a record for showmanship by calling his home run shot" . . . Well, there's a guy who went the Babe two better. . . . Down at Rockingham, N.C., the other day, fans were riding Frank "Whattaman" Packard, of the Charlotte Hornets. . . . "Just for that," yelled Frank, "I'll bust a ball over each of your fences." . . And he did . . . First he cleared the right field wall . . . Then the left . . . And on his third trip to the plate, smashed a homer to deep centre.

TONY CANZONERI WHIPS McLARNIN BY DECISION

Canzoneri Weathers First Round Barrage That Had Him Groggy to Come Back In Great Form in Last Rounds

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, May 9.—Surviving a first round blast that had him battered and bleeding, apparently on the verge of a knockout, Tony Canzoneri came back last night to give Jimmy McLarnin a sound trimming in one of the most spectacular fights little fellows have waged here in many a moon.

At the end of 10 furious rounds, witnessed by a sweltering, near-capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden, Canzoneri carried off the unanimous decision of two judges and the referee, Arthur Donovan.

LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP IN DAZZLING RALLY

The lightweight champion, who looks like a miniature Babe Ruth and hits with the same abandon when the mood strikes him, won all by himself with as dazzling a rally as the fight faithful have ever seen.

Canzoneri won seven rounds, dropped McLarnin to one knee with a terrific right-hander in the second round and had the one-time "baby-faced" Dynamiter from Vancouver at the mercy of two-fisted fire at the finish.

Once the terror of all the little men of fistiana, McLarnin started off with so sudden and furious an attack that it looked as though Canzoneri would quickly be added to Jimmy's long list of victims Only his remarkable stamina saved Tony from going down and possibly out in that hectic first round. Blood streamed from his nose. His legs acted like a pair of stilts. His eyes were glassy.

TURNED SWIFTLY

The "wise money" that had made Jimmy a 9 to 5 favorite at the ringside was all ready to be spent.

But the fortunes of fistic warfare turned swiftly. Having taken McLarnin's stiffest punches without going down, and recuperating rapidly between rounds, Canzoneri came out with a second round rush that soon had the crowd in a frenzy and McLarnin in obvious perplexity.

The crafty Canzoneri, regaining the aggressive so quickly that McLarnin must have thought he was facing two other fellows, opened fire with both hands. He not only lashed Jimmy fearfully wtih both hands, but made the Canadian Irishman's counter punches look bad. A right smash that started from the floor dropped Jimmy to one knee but he bounced up without a count.

ALL CANZONERI

From there on, with the exception of the fourth and eighth which went to McLarnin by a shade on points, it was all Canzoneri.

The lightweight champion spotted his rival more than six pounds, scaling 136½ to McLarnin's 143, but [illegible] his punching as well as boxing mastery. He repeatedly beat Jimmy to the punch, meanwhile bobbing or weaving out of range of counter thrusts. He rarely wasted a move but when he got an opening he seized it with the furious rush of a young tiger.

In the fifth, ninth and tenth rounds McLarnin staggered under Canzoneri's two-fisted fire. Jimmy's nose bled from the fifth on. In the ninth only the ropes saved the welter king from hitting the floor after he absorbed a terrific blast to the head. Tony's left landed flush and Jimmy recoiled as though hit by a club. He plunged into the ropes but righted himself and lasted the round.

FIGHT OF CELT

BIGGEST CROWD

But he managed to remain erect to the final bell, despite Tony's vigorous efforts to bring him down

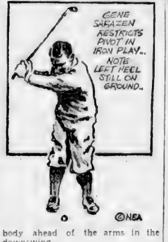
The paid attendance was 16,903 and the gate receipts $85,763.50. Except for the Louis-Paulino match last December, which Mike Jacobs promoted in collaboration with the Garden, the house was the biggest for any fistic attraction in the Eighth avenue arena since 1932.

GREAT GOLF

By ART KRENZ

Why the pivot should be restricted in iron play has been a puzzling question to many golfers.

The pivot is shortened to enable the player to hit the ball with the arms alone. To restrict this pivot, many star golfers do not allow the left heel to leave the ground in the backswing. There then is less chance of getting the body ahead of the arms in the downswing.



GENE SARAZEN RESTRICTS PIVOT IN IRON PLAY.. NOTE LEFT HEEL STILL ON GROUND..

Unlike wood play, where distance is desired and a full pivot is the means of acquiring it, the irons are intended for accuracy and shorter distance; therefore, less pivot is necessary.

Orange Crush Team Softball Practice

This will be an important workout and all those already on the team and others wishing to make a berth are urged to be present. The primary end of the practice is to whip the team into shape for its coming game with Muttart Pats on Tuesday evening.

COMMERCIAL TEN PINNERS HOLD BANQUET

Prizes Awarded at Big Gathering Here on Friday Night

A score or more of bowling enthusiasts assembled to close the Commercial Ten Pin League bowling competition for this season at an enjoyable banquet on Friday night at the Moose Temple Hall.

The championship bowlers, the Crescent team, were presented their awards by C. H. Spencer, himself an old timer in the game. The championship team consisted of Marsh Hodgins, Sam Scott, the veterans, and George Wilson, Jimmy Taylor, Art Juriat and Louis Podersky.

Caterers to the banquet were Cris Jensen and his staff from the Recreation hall lunch. They gave splendid service for the many bowlers in attendance.

While the Crescent team took many of the major honors, it was also noticed that the runners up, the Progressives, also took some of the honors.

HI-School -Lights ON SPORT

By BRUCE MACDONALD

For the second time in two years the Edmonton high schools will be without the numerous benefits of a school field day. In past years there have been two half days of the term given over to this competition and it has definitely been of athletic benefit. More than one athlete who has later brought credit to Edmonton gained his start in these sport days. They have served more than to promote inter-school rivalry, they have aroused interest in track and field sports. Now that the schools have discontinued these meets, it is certain that interest will die rapidly. It may not seem important but it is one factor which is responsible for Canada not having Olympic teams of real ability.

Incidently, any boys or girls of high school age who are interested in track and field athletics will receive the chance of a life time this summer. The Dominion Junior championship is being held in Wetaskiwin, so they only have to travel forty miles and they will be able to watch and compete against Canada's finest young athletes.

On the South Side of the river at Scona High a house league softball league has been arranged. There are eight teams composing the circuit and these squads play games at noon and after four; some times as much as three a day. The idea is to get the league finished in time for the boys to do some concentrating on these Exams which are getting so close.

At Scona the football boys are also beginning to warm up. They held their first practice early in the week. No squad has been chosen as yet but the boys seem confident of a strong lineup. The only question which might be asked is: "Who are they going to play against as there will be no organized school sport this spring?"

Early next week the tennis enthusiasts at Victoria hope to swing into action. Vic. is the only school in the city which has the facilities and the students are certainly going to make a lot of use of them. Mr. Dobson, who is in charge of the club, says that there will be about one hundred students playing tennis in the club this year So Vic still leads the way.

Dr. Dafoe Visits Farm

"COUNTRY DOCTOR" WITH HIS NEW CHEVROLET

Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets and celebrated in the films as the "country doctor", paid a visit to Oshawa recently and took delivery of a new Chevrolet coach. First trip in the new car was to Parkwood Farm, where the racing stable of R. S. McLaughlin is located. There, though he has never seen thoroughbreds race, he expressed great interest in Spearman and the other three-year-olds — McLaughlin Stable candidates for the forthcoming King's Plate.

COMMUNITY GIRLS SOFTBALL OPENS

Due to inclement weather only three of the seven scheduled games were played on the opening day of the Community Girls' Softball league.

The big surprise of the day was the 16-7 victory the North Edmonton Bull Dogs won over the young Calder Cubs. Cromdale Cruisers duplicated the 16-7 victory of the Bull Dogs over the Cloverdale Canucks, while Rossdale Rookies edged out a 10-9 victory over Bonnie Doon Dynamoes. This last game was close throughout and the breaks had much to do with the final score.

Important Meet Girls' Baseball

An important meeting of city girls' baseball league will be held Monday night at 8.00 p.m. in the Civic block

All those interested in assisting or promoting this particular sport are urged to be in attendance as many important points and plans will be discussed.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Fred Apostoli, former San Francisco bellhop, moved into the front ranks of challengers for the middleweight boxing title last night when he scored a comparatively easy 10-round decision over Eddie "Babe" Risko, world's champion, in a non-title bout.

Soccer Drills

There will be a practice of the Edmonton Civics Football Club on Sunday morning, May 10, starting at 10.00 a.m. and players are asked to report at the Street Railway car barns at that time.

It is the intentions of the Civics to run a junior team in connection with the senior team and any junior wishing to try out should get in touch with Johnny Wilson at 72863 or report at the Car Barns for practice nights.

Provincial Golf Championships at Mayfair in July

PUBLIC SCHOOL SPORT NEWS

With pitchers being knocked for a loop in no uncertain style, the Edmonton Public School Senior Softball league opened on May 7th With the weather ideal, it was a great day for the clouters and as a consequence the scores resemble those run up by cricketers.

Major Kennedy, supervisor of physical education, was pleased with the enthusiastic opening. Large crowds at each game conducted themselves in fine sportsmanly style and the rooting was wholehearted and very fair. Even umpires noticed that their decisions got by with slight opposition—a rare thing sometimes.

The results of Thursday's games follow:—

Normal Practice 8, Garneau 15.
Ritchie 10, King Edward 21.
Donald Ross 5, Bennett 6.
Oliver 18, McKay Ave. 6.
Alex. Taylor 3, McCauley 17.

A like number of games will be played on Monday.

The junior soccer team from H A. Gray have won their division and is now waiting results in other divisions.

The girls will break into the sporting page next week as their league opens on Monday. To see some very ladylike girls sock that ball is a revelation and some snappy encounters are sure to be chalked up when the league opens up in earnest.

MAJOR AND MINOR NOTES

Next week's major musical event will be the Edmonton District Musical Festival, which opens at McDougall auditorium on Monday evening and continues until Friday. Competitions on the Monday evening schedule include junior lieder, senior violin, senior piano, violin and piano sonata and women's open solo competitions

• • •

With 364 entries the success of the festival is assured. Tuesday will see further interesting competitions and Wednesday and Thursday will be largely devoted to school chorus events.

• • •

There will be a concert on Thursday evening in which winners of selected competitions will take part. On this evening also will be heard the male chorus competition and the Hamilton trophy will be awarded for the most artistic performance in the adult choral classes. These and many other attractive features will be on the agenda for the week.

• • •

Of special interest to music lovers is the forthcoming showing at the Strand theatre of "Give Us This Night," in which Jan Kiepura, great Polish tenor and Gladys Swarthout, American mezzo-soprano take the leading roles. Pre-viewed on Good Friday, this picture made a favorable impression.

• • •

Apart from the excellent singing, a feature of the musical part of the film, is the fact that the music was especially composed and the orchestra recording same, conducted by Erich Wolfgang Korngold, young Viennese composer, who came from Hollywood for the express purpose. In his youth Korngold was a child prodigy and unlike many prodigies, he has developed into a mature, skilled musician. In "Give Us This Night" he has contributed several mellifluous numbers which already have won popularity. "Sweet Melody of Night" is appealing, as is the song bearing the title of the picture.

• • •

Mrs. Ernest Meaden spent a busy week at Heintzman's where she is accommodating those who desire to make early reservations for next season's Celebrity Series of concerts under the auspices of the Women's Musical Club. This series will include the famous Lawrence Tibbett, baritone; Elizabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan opera soprano; Josef Hoffman, world famous pianist and the six English singers.

• • •

The success of the recent series has encouraged the Musical Club to proceed and every effort is being made to make the next series equally successful, if not more so

• • •

Vernon Barford, dean of Edmonton musicians has been honored by the Edmonton District Musical Festival Committee, in having one of his songs included in the syllabus. It is well merited distinction, both for Mr. Barford and the song.

CROWD GREETS CANUCK FLIER

WINNIPEG, May 9.—Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, Winnipeg pilot who flew across the Antarctic continent with Lincoln Ellsworth, was greeted by a crowd of admirers when he arrived home Friday from New York. He was accompanied by Mrs. Kenyon and J. H. Lymburner, spare pilot on the expedition that spanned a frozen south polar continent.

Smiling good-humoredly, Kenyon, looking bronzed and fit, was almost swept off his feet as the crowd pressed around his party, waving hats and handkerchiefs to shouts of "Good old Holly." Civic officials were on hand to greet the party who will be given an official welcome by the city and province today.

FIVE NATIONS AWAIT BRITAIN

GENEVA, May 9.—The foreign ministers of five northern European countries, in a conference today, decided to take note of Great Britain's policy before determining their own collective stand concerning the continuance of sanctions against Italy

The ministers represented Norway, Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands and Finland.

They frowned upon Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia and voiced the opinion the League of Nations should show a strong attitude opposed to aggression in order to uphold its authority

They made no decisions, however pending determination of what Great Britain intends to do.

THE KING HONORS PHILATELY

At one time King Edward VIII was a keen stamp collector but for some years past he has taken little active interest. As Prince of Wales, our monarch became honorary president of the Royal Philatelic Society in 1919. The announcement that the King has granted his patronage to the society, in succession to his father, is greeted with enthusiasm by collectors everywhere. It is understood he intends to carry on the wonderful collection of stamps of the British Commonwealth of Nations formed by King George V., which is now at Buckingham Palace in charge of Sir Edward Bacon, keeper of the King's Stamps.

There is already talk of special stamps to celebrate King Edward's Coronation in May of next year.

GLOSSARY OF PHILATELIC TERMS
Paper

1. Basted Mills—The paper on which some of the stamps of New Zealand were printed, made by the Basted Mills Company, a thin, hard paper, closely wove, watermarked with double-lined "N.Z." and Star

2. Batonne—Watermarked with straight, parallel lines a certain distance apart, intended as a guide for writing. The spaces between them may either be plain, when the paper is termed wove batonne; or filled with less distinct parallel lines, when it is termed laid batonne.

3. Blued (bleute)—Paper that has turned a bluish color, due to chemical action resulting from substances used in its manufacture and the ink with which the stamp is printed.

4. Chalk-surfaced, Chalky—See coated paper.

5. Chinese—A fine soft paper, giving fine impressions from engravings, used for proofs; more commonly known as India paper. It is made from bamboo fibre, and is of a very faint yellow color.

6. Coated—This is the correct term to be applied to all the papers with a chalky or enamelled surface, employed to render it impossible to clean off a cancellation without destroying the impression of the stamp. Examples: Great Britain 4d. 1855; New South Wales, 1901, etc. See also Safety Paper.

7. Cowan—A thin hard wove paper supplied by Messrs. Cowan and Sons, Ltd., for postage stamps of New Zealand; sometimes without watermark, but usually watermarked with single-lined "N Z" and Star.

8. Dickinson or Silk Thread—A special paper with silk threads in it, known as "Dickinson" paper from the name of the inventor, used for the Mulready envelopes and letter-sheets, for the embossed envelopes and letter-sheets which succeeded them, for the octagonal Tenpence and shilling stamps of Great Britain. Its peculiarity consists in its having a continuous thread of silk in its substance, the thread being embedded in the soft pulp during the manufacture of the paper

9. Enamelled, Glazed—See Coated Paper

10. Granite—A paper with colored fibres in it similar to those in the writing papers known as silurian

11. Hand-made—Made by hand, and thus in separate sheets, instead of in continuous rolls as made by machinery. The sheets have deckle (rough) edges on all four sides.

The General hospital at Nelson, B.C., and the Consumptives' Sanitarium at Grangeville, B.C., each receive legacies of $1,500.

LOCAL NEGRO FEARFUL FOR ABYSSINIANS

effective device by which blacks were coaxed aboard ship with music, rum and the promise of a big spree. The rum was generously distributed and the blacks slowly slipped into a coma. The crew quickly battened down the hatches and the blacks awoke to find themselves a few hundred miles out in the Atlantic ocean. His great-grandparents, then a newly married couple, were sold on the slave block.

Jason is the grandson of his own master, a wild Irishman named James Craig. To have mentioned this relationship was more than his life was worth. His mother, the daughter of Craig, was a household servant and her child was allowed to play with the master's children. Jason was also allowed to ride behind his master's saddle.

From the saddle the little boy saw many things that seared his memory. He saw the colored people being whipped into subjection; he saw them doing 13 to 14 hours' work a day in the blazing southern sun. He saw them filling the master's pantry and spinning the cloth for his fine ladies' clothes all in return for a paltry diet of corn bread and fat meat.

JUST TEMPERAMENTAL

James Craig had brought his Irish temper to America with him. By some he was considered a kind master but Mr. Jones' own opinion is that he was the most diabolical whip-wielder in the country. So often did Craig use the whip that he found it expensive to buy cats o' nine tails and instead used the supple branches of the dogwood. These were six feet long and two inches thick at the base. Run-away slaves and other offenders were strung up by the hands to a post and their backs beaten to a pulp.

When this proved monotonous to the watchers, the slave was hung up by the heels and the problem was approached from another angle. Few, says Mr. Jones, ever survived this brutal method of correction.

There was also a pleasant method of punishing the young bucks who sneaked away from the plantation to do a bit of courting. A fiddler was brought and made to play while the overseer slashed at the lover's heels with a dogwood whip.

When liberated Mr. Jones worked his way through school and college. Owing to racial prejudice he was never able to take his degree at Rust University and so returned to farm in his native state. During the next 25 years he realized that the emancipation was merely a sham. The laws of the Mississippi legislature allowed the colored people little more freedom than they had known before.

In desperation he came to Alberta in 1910 and farmed until 1926, when he moved to Edmonton.

SPOTLESSLY CLEAN

His small shack is kept spotlessly clean. On the wall is a picture of a curly-headed picaniny, his granddaughter. Mr. Jones still has 10 children living in various parts of the continent. These have provided him with 25 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren—a true patriarch.

He told the Bulletin that he wouldn't trade his shack and lot for two townships of Mississippi bottom land "that'll grow English peas so high that you have to stand on a step ladder to pick them." In Alberta he has found a liberty and equality that is non-existent in Mississippi.

Completing C.N.R. Hotel In Vancouver Is Not Considered

OTTAWA, May 9—No consideration is now being given to completing the Canadian National Railways hotel in Vancouver, Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of railways, told H. C. Green (Con. Vancouver South) in the House of Commons Friday.

The minister said it would cost about $3,000,000 and require two years to complete and open the hotel. This would be done as soon as it appeared the hotel would not cause the system a greater loss open than it was causing now. There was no present thought of opening it.

Other Roads Improving But Athabasca Highway Impassable

A complete ban on all trucks and trailers prohibiting travel on the Calgary Trail, Alberta's No. 1 highway, was issued by the department of Public Works Saturday. WEEK-END TO BE FAIR, WARM

Week-end weather will place no barricades in the way of out-door pleasure lovers, the forecast "fair and warm" giving the green light to golfers, "tennists," hikers, cyclists, motorists.

Friday's high was 61 at 3 p.m. Saturday's low was 44 at 6 a.m. and the 9 a.m. reading was 55 above, highest at that hour for the week.

Federal Relief Cheque Delayed

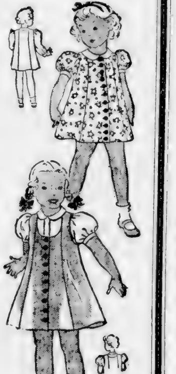
Due to delay in the Dominion government forwarding cheque to the province on account of relief payments, the province has in turn delayed sending April cheques to the cities, it was learned on Saturday.

The delay is believed to be due to the discussions now under way regarding unemployment relief works and on the general relief situation.

Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and in charge of relief, stated that no official confirmation had been yet received from Ottawa that the relief grant was to be cut another 15 per cent over and above the 15 per cent slash made effective on April 1, although Ottawa advices are to this effect.

What New York Is Wearing

By Helen Williams



Have you a little princess in your home? If not, here are two models in one pattern.

You'll want to make both models. They are so simple to sew and take the minimum of material.

Style No. 2868 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires $2\frac{5}{8}$ yards of 35-inch material with $\frac{1}{4}$ yard of 35-inch contrasting for dress with short sleeves; jumper dress requires $1\frac{7}{8}$ yards of 35-inch material with $1\frac{1}{8}$ yards of 35-inch material for blouse.

Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Children in the EATON Playground
They're having such a grand time! That big sand-pile . . . with little buckets and spades for castle-building 'n all. The blocks and kiddie kars and trains. So much more fun than trotting after Mother when she's shopping! Mother thinks it's fun, too, for she says she can get her purchasing done so much more easily when she knows the kiddies are happy in the playground, in the care of the competent matron. And there's not the slightest charge for all this fun and convenience, either!

WHILE AN AGENT IN THE SECRET SERVICE OF THE CZAR, I HOOKED A MONSTER POSKANUCK IN THE HEADWATERS OF THE KANUSKI RIVER THAT EMPTIES INTO THE ARCTIC SEA.
HE HEADED DOWN STREAM, DRAGGING MY SKIFF IN HIS WAKE AT SUCH A PACE THAT BY HIGH NOON, I FOUND MYSELF IN AN ICE DRIFT NEAR THE MOUTH OF THE RIVER, SOME 1200 MILES FROM WHERE I SNAGGED HIM—
—SO OCCUPIED WAS I, IN KEEPING MY FRAIL CRAFT FROM BEING BASHED TO BITS AGAINST THE FLOATING ICE, THAT I FAILED TO NOTICE—
—A POLAR BEAR ATOP A HUGE CAKE — SUDDENLY THE BOAT CAME TO A SHORT STOP — THE BEAR HAD FLIPPED THE POSKANUCK OUT OF THE WATER, AND SWALLOWED FISH, HOOK AND LINE—
GR-R-R-R
LEAPING ONTO THE ICE, I DEFTLY THREW A LOOP, LARIAT FASHION, OVER THE BEAR'S HEAD AND, DRAWING THE LINE TAUT, I CHOKED HIM TO DEATH!
THE OLD TOPER! I'LL RED-LIGHT HIM, BEFORE HE TELLS ME HOW HE SNARED A COVEY OF PINKFISH THAT PERSUED HIM ACROSS THE GOBI DESERT.
I THEN RETRIEVED MY TACKLE AND, BAITING IT WITH BEAR MEAT, I HOOKED ANOTHER POSKANUCK THAT WAS HEADED UP STREAM!
HAVING LOADED THE BEAR INTO MY SKIFF, I WAS TOWED BACK TO THE VILLAGE BEFORE NIGHTFALL!
SAY, DOC. TAKE A TIP FROM AN OLD INHALER BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE, AND CONFINE YOUR CORK PULLING TO THE ONES YOU TIE ON A FISH LINE!

by William Ferguson
ALL WASPS ARE KNOWN EITHER AS SOCIAL OR SOLITARY! THOSE OF THE SOCIAL GROUP LIVE IN COMMUNITIES, IN A COMMON HABITATION, WHILE THE SOLITARY WASPS BUILD INDIVIDUAL NESTS.
ONE SPECIES OF WASP IS KNOWN AS THE "TARANTULA HAWK." IT STINGS THE GIANT SPIDER ... THUS PARALYZING IT... THEN DRAGS IT TO A HOLE, THRUSTS IT IN, DEPOSITS AN EGG UPON ITS BODY, AND COVERS IT UP. THE SPIDER SERVES AS FOOD FOR THE NEWLY-HATCHED YOUNG.
SOME WASPS ARE CARPENTERS, AND BORE THEIR NESTS IN TREE TRUNKS...OTHERS ARE MINERS, AND DIG HOLES IN THE GROUND, IN WHICH TO LIVE.
MOST INTERESTING OF ALL ARE THE PAPER WASPS, OR HORNETS, WHICH BUILD LARGE, GRAY HOMES OF PAPER... PAPER WHICH THE WASPS THEMSELVES HAVE MANUFACTURED FROM WOOD PULP! A SECTION OF THE WALL IS REMOVED, ABOVE, TO SHOW CELLED INTERIOR.
WASPS POSSESS A MORE VERSATILE, IF LOWER, INTELLIGENCE THAN BEES! THEY STILL APPEAR TO BE IN A STAGE OF DEVELOPMENT, WHILE BEES HAVE ARRIVED AT PERFECTION. THE MALE HAS NO VOICE IN THE COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION. IN MOST SPECIES, ONLY THE PERFECT FEMALES SURVIVE THE WINTER.
